Welcome to Legacy Update

Legacy Update installed

Windows 7 x86 SP1, Internet Explorer 9.0 x86
Update Agent 7.6.7601.19141 - Supported version
ActiveX control 1.3.0.0 - Supported version

This is a community-run resource to help you fix the Windows Update service on earlier versions of Windows.

Since Windows XP was discontinued in 2014, followed by Windows 7 in 2020, Microsoft's support for their earlier OSes has significantly dwindled. As XP and earlier don't officially support modern security improvements, such as the SHA256 hash algorithm required by modern SSL and Authenticode certificates as of 2019, much of the internet has become inaccessible to these devices. Adding insult to injury, Microsoft actively removed many downloads for XP and earlier versions in 2020. In effect, working with these OSes is now incredibly difficult.

Windows Update provides many optional and recommended updates, in addition to drivers for your system, but Windows XP and 2000 can only install critical security updates through the built-in Automatic Updates feature. Legacy Update revives the original Windows Update website - the only way to see and install every update available for your system.

Legacy Update can install all relevant updates necessary to fix access to the Windows Update service on Windows 7 and Windows Vista. These versions of Windows may display the error "Windows could not search for new updates: Windows Update encountered an unknown error" with error code 80072EFE, or may simply never finish checking for updates. Legacy Update identifies the updates your system lacks, and installs them automatically, restoring the Windows Update service to full functionality.

Legacy Update also fixes Windows Product Activation on Windows XP and Windows Server 2003, allowing you to activate these versions of Windows online in seconds, without needing to call Microsoft to activate over the phone (requires XP SP3/Server 2003 SP2).
