Semiannual Report to the President and to the Congress National Advisory Council on International Monetary and Financial Policies (U.S.),1958 Rural and Regional Futures Anthony Hogan,Michelle Young,2014-09-19 Agriculture mining and related rural industries have been central to the development of Australia s economy This book details the role that the Australian Government has played in the making of rural and regional Australia particularly since World War II The book reviews these policies and evaluates them with regards the commitments undertaken by the Government to contribute towards vibrant rural communities Policy areas addressed include agriculture water education welfare and population natural resource management resource extraction Indigenous and affairs localism rural research and regional innovation Youth Affairs and the devolution of regional governance Overall two distinct policy strategies can be observed one wherein the government saw its role as part of the entrepreneurial state and a sector wherein government has increasingly taken itself out of industry development leaving this role to the market Having considered these strategies and their impacts the book concludes that policy over the past 40 years has not in fact contributed to a more vibrant prosperous rural and regional Australia Rural and Regional Futures concludes with several chapters looking to the future One chapter explores what the role of the state can be within a social market economy while the final chapter gives consideration to the initial steps rural communities will need to take to begin the process of revitalisation While these materials present as a case study of developments in Australia the policy shift from the Government as entrepreneur to a focus on markets is an international one and as such the insights offered by this book will have wide appeal The Economist ,1866 Migration and Health Marc B. Schenker,Xóchitl Castañeda,Alfonso Rodriguez-Lainz,2014-10-24 The study of migrant populations poses unique challenges owing to the mobility of these groups which may be further complicated by cultural educational and linguistic diversity as well as the legal status of their members These barriers limit the usefulness of both traditional survey sampling methods and routine public health surveillance systems Since nearly 1 in 7 people in the world is a migrant appropriate methodological approaches must be designed and implemented to capture health data from populations This effort is particularly important because migrant populations in comparison to other populations typically suffer disparities related to limited access to health care greater exposure to infectious diseases more occupational injuries and fewer positive outcomes for mental health and other health conditions This path breaking handbook is the first to engage with the many unique issues that arise in the study of migrant communities It offers a comprehensive description of quantitative and qualitative methodologies useful in work with migrant populations By providing information and practical tools the editors fill existing gaps in research methods and enhance opportunities to address the health and social disparities migrant populations face in the United States and around the world Biobetters Amy Rosenberg, Barthélemy Demeule, 2015-08-21 Biobetters Protein Engineering to Approach the Curative discusses the optimization of protein therapeutic products for treatment of human diseases It is based on the fact that though numerous important therapeutic protein products have been developed for life threatening and chronic diseases that possess acceptable safety and efficacy profiles these products have generally not been reexamined and modified for an improved clinical performance with enhancements both to safety and efficacy profiles Advances in protein engineering coupled with greatly enhanced understanding of critical product quality attributes for efficacy and safety make it possible to optimize predecessor products for clinical performance thereby enhancing patient quality of life and with the potential for great savings in health care costs Yet despite such knowledge there is little movement towards such modifications This book examines engineering protein therapeutic products such that they exhibit an optimal not just an adequate clinical performance profile Two product classes therapeutic enzymes for lysosomal storage diseases enzyme replacement therapies ERT and monoclonal antibodies mAbs are used as examples of what modifications to such proteins could be made to enhance clinical performance closer to a cure as it were For ERT the key to optimizing clinical performance is to ensure the ERT is endowed with moieties that target the protein to the relevant target tissue Thus for Gaucher Disease our best example of how to optimize an ERT to address a disease that manifests in specific target tissues macrophages and monocytes the enzyme has been extensively modified to target macrophages For diseases such as Pompe Disease largely a disorder of muscle optimal performance of ERT will depend on endowing the enzyme with the ability to be taken up via the Mannose 6 Phosphate Receptor and so one of the chapters in the book will discuss such approaches Moreover a major failure of biotechnology based products is to gain access to the CNS a key target tissue in numerous diseases Thus a chapter has been devoted to strategies to access the CNS Additionally immune responses to therapeutic proteins can be highly problematic eliminating the efficacy of life saving or highly effective protein therapeutics This is especially poignant in the case of Pompe Disease wherein great improvement in muscle strength and functionality is lost following development of an immune response to the ERT with consequent patient deterioration and death Thus a chapter regarding protein engineering as well as other non clinical approaches to diminishing immunogenicity is a valuable part of the book Monoclonal antibodies mAbs can be engineered to bind targets relevant to a wide variety of diseases binding affinity however is only part of the equation and one of the chapters will present a molecular assessment approach that balances affinity with pharmacokinetics and manufacturability As with other proteins immunogenicity can be problematic being responsible for loss of efficacy of anti TNF mAbs often after prolonged successful treatment The authors will also share their perspective on the consequences of physico chemical modifications occurring to mAbs once they reach the circulation or their target a research area open to further development from a protein engineering as well as analytical perspective This book will also discuss novel platforms for protein therapeutics technologies that exceed mAbs with respect to potency and hence potentially efficacy These platforms consist largely of repeat domain proteins with very high affinity for their target ligands but while potentially more efficacious immunogenicity may be a major problem limiting use The economics surrounding the issue of biobetters is another high profile issue this final chapter will explore the incentives and disincentives for developing biobetters and consider incentives that might make their pursuit more rewarding
