AIM: To estimate the prevalences of migraine, tension-type Headache (TTH) and chronic daily headache (CDH) in the Republic of Georgia.

BACKGROUND: The Republic of Georgia is located in the Caucasus. Its total population in 2000 was 4.4 million, 53% urban and 47% rural, with 1.5 million inhabitants in the Capital city, Tbilisi. No data currently exist on the prevalence and impact of headache disorders in the countries of the former Soviet Union.

PROJECT DESIGN

Pilot Phase:

During a small pilot we established and tested the methodology. Medical residents with a structured questionnaire visited adjacent households in Tbilisi to interview a pre-defined target of 100 biologically unrelated subjects. All respondents reporting headache in the previous year, as well as random 20 non-headache controls, were examined by a neurologist. The response rate was 70%. The questionnaire had sensitivities of 89% for migraine and 67% for TTH (overall kappa = 0.74).

Population based validation of the questionnaire:

In second step we validated a Georgian language self-administered questionnaire in a population-derived sample of 186 subjects with headache, recruited randomly during the first stage of the pilot. All subjects completed the questionnaire and then were examined by one of two headache-experienced neurologists who were blind to the questionnaires.

Sensitivities and specificities were, respectively, 0.75 and 0.96 for migraine, 0.79 and 0.86 for TTH, and 0.61 and 0.84 for migraine+TTH (kappa = 0.68).

Main study

Using similar door-to-door methodology, we surveyed two populations: one urban, in Tbilisi (n=1,136), and one rural, in the eastern region of Kakheti (n=565). These yielded 1,298 biologically unrelated adults (>16 years) of whom 722 (56%) were women. Mean age was 45±13 years.

PRINCIPAL FINDINGS

To the screening question "Have you had headache in the last year not related to a cold, flu, hangover or head injury?" 616 (48%) subjects replied "yes".

The estimated 1-year prevalence of migraine was 13% (n=169; 95% CI 12-14%), of TTH 33% (n=422; 95% CI 31-34%) and of CDH 8% (n=105; 95% CI 7-9%).

583 subjects used acute medication for their headaches. The vast majority took combination analgesics and none used triptans. 39 subjects (3% of the total sample) overused acute headache medication.

None of the respondents had seen a neurologist for headache, and none was receiving preventative drugs.

CONCLUSIONS:

This is the first population-based estimate of the prevalence of primary headache disorders in a country of the former Soviet Union. Migraine and tension-type headache have prevalences similar to those found elsewhere. Chronic daily headache is somewhat more prevalent.

The study reveals that no headache service exists in the Republic of Georgia, which may explain the high prevalence of chronic daily headache, including probable medication-overuse headache.

Reducing The Burden Of Headache:

Reducing the Burden of Headache Jes Olesen, Timothy J. Steiner, Richard B. Lipton, 2003 This is the first book devoted to the study of the social and economic consequences of headache Reducing the Burden of Headache analyses the financial cost of headache diseases the disability and suffering they cause and the impact they have on the quality of life of the sufferers and their families These are issues of major importance migraine appears in the top 20 list of diseases ranked according to years lived with disability Headache in general is thought to account for approximately 20% of all days lost from work Of even greater importance is the impact on everyday life studies have shown that migraine has a greater impact on the quality of life of sufferers than many other diseases generally considered to be more serious This book describes and analyses the epidemiological data accumulated in the field and suggests guidelines and interventions aimed at improving healthcare for headache Adoption of these suggestions combined with judicious use of existing resources and modern treatment options can lead to great improvements in the lives of headache sufferers world wide This book will be of interest to neurologists general practitioners epidemiologists public health specialists health service managers and all those interested in improving services and outcomes for sufferers of headache

Handbook of Headache Paolo Martelletti, Timothy J. Steiner, 2011-08-14 Headache disorders are among the most common disorders of the nervous system They are pandemic and in many cases they are recurrent and can accompany the patient for the whole life These disorders impose a substantial burden on headache sufferers on their families and on society the individual impact is measured by the frequency and severity of attacks while the societal burden is measured in terms of loss of activity at work and school as well as of costs for the health system As a matter of facts headaches are ranked in the top ten and maybe the top five causes of disability worldwide they are therefore extraordinarily common Population based studies have mostly focused on migraine which even if it is the most frequently studied headache disorder is not the most common Other types of headache such as the more prevalent TTH and sub types of the more disabling chronic daily headache have so far received less attention and need to be better investigated This book will provide a useful tool to a wide medical population who is required specific skills to diagnose and manage these frequent and often disabling disorders Furthermore it could also represents a compendium for medical students who are usually introduced to this topic through multidisciplinary university programmes
