Reflection-in-Motion Jaclyn

Fiscus-Cannaday, 2025-05-23 Reflection in Motion considers how reflective practice is embedded in daily course happenings centering the experiences of students and teachers in Minority Serving Institutions to amplify underrepresented viewpoints about how reflection works in the writing classroom Jaclyn Fiscus Cannaday examines how its availability is subject to teacher student power dynamics the literacies welcomed or not in the class the past and present pedagogies that students are engaging with and attending to and the interactions among humans materials and emotions within the rhetorical context She adopts an intersectional feminist perspective for an inclusive view of how practitioners name identify and practice reflection in the everyday moments of writing classrooms Fiscus Cannaday invokes a Black feminist qualitative research method that Venus Evans Winters calls a mosaic When researchers collect both traditional and nontraditional texts to create a full view of students and teachers interviews at three institutions a Hispanic Serving Institution a Historically Black College and University and an Asian American Native American Pacific Islander Serving Institution she finds that practitioners often build definitions from past experiences with reflection and then use those definitions as terministic screens to decide if an activity can be named identified and practiced as reflection These definitions hold different rhetorical effects reflection for introspection reflection for learning reflection for mindfulness and reflection for awareness Reflection is used for these different rhetorical effects but because classrooms so often focus on the Westernized view and its emphasis on growth reflection has the underused and undertheorized potential rhetorical effect of helping students investigate their identities and positionalities acknowledge deep rooted ideologies and consider new perspectives so they can better work across difference Reflection in Motion will inspire teachers and writing program administrators to listen to how students define and practice reflection and why thus making room for more capacious definitions of reflection and student centered practices of what reflection can do and be

Rejected Addresses. An Episode in One Act Emily S. Ford, 1882 Estonian Parties at Present and a Generally Reflection on Their Importance to a Modern Democracy Matthias Will, 2009-04

Essay from the year 2007 in the subject Politics International Politics Region Russia grade 1 0 Andr ssy Gyula Deutschsprachige Universit t Budapest course Comparative History of Estonia and Nordic Cultures language English abstract The biggest winner of the election in 2007 was the party of the non voters They got nearly 39 % In the first two parliamentary elections after the independence in 1991 the part of the non voters was about 32 % 1992 and 31 % 1995 The peak was in 1999 43 % of people didn t go the election Reetz is speaking about a gap between the political problems and the interests of the people Because of the perception of the elites is different from the ordinary people s perception It is very surprising that nearly every party which is in the Riigikogu is centre centre right or liberalistic Maybe this is a result of the Soviet occupation and the experiences of this time However in the future there could be a general movement to the left because the competition on the democratic right could become too strong After all parties are not static they have to change themselves if they want to participate because they are a part of the society and the society changes too On the other hand the result of a free competition is parties will fill political gaps by changing their attitudes to achieve new voters      Reflection in Action
