John Chi-kin Lee,Zeyuan Yu,Xianhan Huang,Edmond Hau-Fai Law,2016-03-22 In 2000 the Western Development plan of the Chinese Mainland attracted attention of educators and policy makers Around that period the Chinese government also launched large scale and systemic curriculum reforms in basic education and secondary education in achieving quality education across the vast country Despite significant progress that has been made in educational investments and attainments in China issues of quality and regional disparities across China remain especially in the less developed western part of China where the significance of ethnic diversity urban rural disparity and variations in school development exists In addition there have been entrenched problems of teacher and teaching quality resources inadequacy and left behind children Written by a group of Chinese and international scholars the book provides an updated analysis and discussion of educational development and related issues in the less developed part of Western China These chapters cover broad contextual issues of educational development and reforms issues of quality and equality in different sectors of education as well as curriculum implementation teaching innovations and professional development of teachers

China's Spatial Economic

Development Andrew M. Marton,2013-12-16 The spatial patterns of China s rapid economic transformation fundamentally challenge conventional geographies of urban and regional development This book provides a theoretically informed case study of the local character of regional change in China s lower Yangzi Delta as well as a new analytical framework for understanding China s unique form of economic modernization

Globalisation, Transition and Development in China

Rui Huaichuan,2004-06-02 Based on extensive original research Globalisation Transition and Development in China explains China s development strategy and its underlying forces and the success of this strategy It examines China s gradualist approach which emphasizes development first and regards transition and globalization as secondary enacting liberalization of domestic markets and integration into the world economy in a paced way avoiding dramatic changes which might impede or even reverse development and argues that this approach is broadly correct It considers China s failures including the failure to build large globally competitive corporations despite the intention to do this and shows how China s economic strategy has been implemented in detail with a case study of the large and important coal industry

Financial Sector

Reform in China Yasheng Huang,Tony Saich,Edward Steinfeld,2020-10-26 An edited volume consisting of an introduction by the editors and eleven additional papers on China s financial system and financial sector reform The papers originated at a conference on financial reform in China held at the John F Kennedy School of Government Harvard University in 2001 They were then thoroughly revised and updated for publication

Deepening Reform for China's Long-term Growth and Development Ligang Song,Ross Garnaut,Cai Fang,2014-07-10 The Chinese economy has entered a new phase of development in which sources of growth are not so much dependent upon pure increases in labour investment and credit expansion but from productivity improvement structural changes technological progress and the benefits from improvement of the social security and welfare improvement When market functions are fully established to become a main channel for allocating resources the entrepreneurship will flourish engaging in more innovative activities workers will move more freely and have more incentives to improve their skills firms will become more productive through market entry and exit the economic structure will become more balanced because of the improved resource allocation and in the end growth will become more spontaneous and sustainable In this sense reforms could deliver dividend by raising China's potential economic growth rates For China to confront all the challenges it faces at present the reforms undertaken now have to be deep comprehensive and far reaching in order to succeed in paving the way for China to complete the task of transformation in the long term There is no better alternative than deepening the market oriented reform in advancing the course of China's modernisation for future development and prosperity and lifting China to the status of a developed economy in the next two decades The recent China update books have covered the topic of reform from different angles and this new book is another attempt to address this important issue Institutional Reform and Economic Development in the Chinese Countryside

Keith Griffin, 2016-07-08 First Published in 1985 This volume contains material prepared over a three week field trip by the authors in rural China in July and August of 1982 and then again in September 1983 Including field work in the areas of Shaanxi and the Chongqing municipality Health and Education Reforms in Rural China Li Li, 2019-11-13 China witnessed an unprecedented economic boom in the past four decades but will soon see the end of demographic dividend With shrinking labor improving the quality of human capital could be one way to maintain China's remarkable growth The population in rural China accounts for 41% of the total population in China but the human capital development in rural China lags far behind the urban cities This book selects four major reforms on education and health in rural China and evaluates the impact of these reforms on human capital development Through rigorous econometric analysis the book looks at factors of the rural urban gap in human capital and the causal relationship between the reforms and the human capital development This book will be a useful reference for developing economies which are facing similar issues in the labor market
