Crossing many disciplinary boundaries, her concept of social death has come to play a significant role in the multidisciplinary field of genocide studies. Sandi's life began with a loving two-parent home, and then in the blink of an eye, everything changed. Her life would never be the same. The grief she felt from multiple childhood losses was never addressed. Instead, this young girl buried her own pain within and took on internalizing the grief of the adults around her. Because Sandi was never given proper coping skills, she created her own. Many years later, though still young and naive, someone came along to fill the void she felt in a most unhealthy way. Unfortunately, more hurt, loss, and grief occurred, which resulted in the course of her life changing once again. Two major life traumas had occurred before she was a young adult. Somehow, Sandi persevered, and her instincts of protection kicked in. Then she was forced to make the most difficult decision of her life. Somehow, Sandi didn't succumb to what could've easily become a life of depression, addiction, and other self-sabotaging choices. Something within her, something she inherited from the legacy of women before her, something or someone made her use her inner strength to go forward. All the childhood traumas Sandi experienced didn't break her; instead, they deepened her inner strength, her perseverance, and her resiliency.      Hope Jennifer Hope Siller, 2012-02-24 This book shall soothe your soul with heartfelt sincerity and challenge your views.
