Loss Anthology:

Loss David L. Eng, David Kazanjian, 2003 If catastrophe is not representable according to the narrative explanations which would make sense of history then making sense of ourselves and charting the future are not impossible But we are as it were marked for life and that mark is insuperable irrecoverable It becomes the condition by which life is risked by which the question of whether one can move and with whom and in what way is framed and incited by the irreversibility of loss itself Judith Butler from the Afterword Loss is a wonderful volume powerful and important deeply moving and intellectually challenging at the same time ethical and not moralistic It is one of those rare collections that work as a multifaceted whole to map new areas for inquiry and pose new questions I found myself educated and provoked by the experience of participating in an ongoing dialogue Amy Kaplan author of The Anarchy of Empire in the Making of U S Culture Enduring Loss in Early Modern Germany Lynne Tatlock, 2010 Cross disciplinary perspectives on responses to material and spiritual loss in early modern Germany trace how individuals and communities registered coped with and made sense of deprivation through a spectrum of activities often turning loss into gain and acquiring agency Lost and Found Emma L.E. Rees, 2013-06-28 He is my miracle says Sarah Frost Mellor s protagonist of her lover Joe Found by accident in the least likely of places Sarah won the 2012 Cheshire Prize for Literature with her short story Udumbara in Lytham St Anne s and it s in this modest seaside town that Lost and Found begins Reading through the stories in this collection the reader will find many things surreal flotsam on a desolate beach a love letter mislaid for decades turns of phrase in a classroom relationships shaped in unusual settings But to find something means simultaneously to acknowledge the possibility of loss And loss figures largely in the anthology too from beloved relatives to despised spouses and from inconsequential objects to an individual s very sense of self life s losses are portrayed here in a variety of humorous dark and frequently surprising ways The Cheshire Prize for Literature was inaugurated in 2003 as the High Sheriff s Cheshire Prize for Literature It is funded by the Bank of America Europe Card Services and is administered by the University of Chester The 2012 competition was for short stories and this collection contains 24 of the shortlisted entries including those of the eventual winner Details of the Prize are available at <http://www.chester.ac.uk/literatureprize> On Loss Erica Marchant, Joshua George, Melissa Schell, 2019-07-06 Loss like love deepens with living Defining loss travels beyond grief It is more than saying goodbye surviving destruction or facing deprivation Loss means letting go moving on and finding the light again Lost items lost people lost minds In them there s a silent hope With loss comes pain but with pain comes finding the good the happiness in renewing one s life and redeeming the irredeemable On Loss is a genre crossing collection of short stories poetry and flash fiction Each piece though vastly different is On Loss Narratives tragedies and tales from space travel time travel and a crime fighting superhero to war veterans insanity and a drive thru cemetery splash across the pages Whether losing a loved one memories innocence or the mind each one follows a different path of loss and its aftermath Every story unique each touched with inflection and speckled

Lost Property Jennifer Summit,2000-07 The English literary canon is haunted by the figure of the lost woman writer In our own age she has been a powerful stimulus for the rediscovery of works written by women But as Jennifer Summit argues the lost woman writer also served as an evocative symbol during the very formation of an English literary tradition from the fourteenth through the sixteenth centuries Lost Property traces the representation of women writers from Margery Kempe and Christine de Pizan to Elizabeth I and Mary Queen of Scots exploring how the woman writer became a focal point for emerging theories of literature and authorship in English precisely because of her perceived alienation from tradition Through original archival research and readings of key literary texts Summit writes a new history of the woman writer that reflects the impact of such developments as the introduction of printing the Reformation and the rise of the English court as a literary center A major rethinking of the place of women writers in the histories of books authorship and canon formation Lost Property demonstrates that rather than being an unimaginable anomaly the idea of the woman writer played a key role in the invention of English literature lost a child to traumatic death and the psychotherapeutic strategies that best facilitate healing. It is based on the results of the largest study ever conducted of parents surviving a child's traumatic death or suicide. The book was conceived by William and Beverly Feigelman following their own devastating loss of a son and written from the perspective of their experiences as both suicide survivor support group participants and facilitators. It intertwines data, insight, and critical learning gathered from research with the voices of the 575 survivors who participated in the study. The text emphasizes the sociological underpinnings of survivors' grief and provides data that vividly documents their critical need for emotional support. It explains how bereavement difficulties can be exacerbated by stigmatization and by the failure of significant others to provide expected support. Also explored in depth are the ways in which couples adapt to the traumatic loss of a child and how this can bring them closer or render their relationship irreparable. Findings suggest that with time and peer support affiliations, most traumatically bereaved parents ultimately demonstrate resilience and find meaningful new roles for themselves, helping the newly bereaved or engaging in other humanitarian acts.

Key Features: Offers researchers, clinicians, and parent survivors current information on how parents adapt initially and over time after the traumatic loss of a child. Presents data culled from the largest survey ever conducted of 575 individuals of parents surviving a child's suicide or other traumatic death. Investigates the ways in which stigmatization complicates and prolongs the grieving process. Addresses the tremendous value of support groups in the healing process. Explores how married couples are affected by the traumatic loss of their child.
