The Roman Noir in Post-war French Culture Claire Gorrara,2003 The Roman Noir in Post War French Culture offers a lively introduction to the post war French roman noir from a cultural studies perspective A populist and widely disseminated genre the French roman noir has suffered from a reputation as a minor genre with its roots in American popular culture In this study Claire Gorrara challenges such preconceptions and examines how selected writers have appropriated the roman noir as a critical response to formative concerns and debates in post war French society Starting with the first truly French roman noir L o Malet s 120 rue de la gare 1943 and concluding with Maud Tabachnik s feminist thriller Un t pourri 1994 Gorrara analyses both texts and film in relation to their specific historical and cultural context From the heritage of the Second World War and France's wars of decolonisation to the rise of consumer culture and questions of gender and sexual equality the roman noir operates in dialogue with its times mediating social change and transformation with stories of crime transgression and marginality All the novelists studied were published initially in popular collections such as the Série noire but they have been chosen for the innovation of their work and the exciting ways in which they resist tired conventions and offer new ways of representing social reality One of the first English language studies of this popular genre The Roman Noir in Post War French Culture offers much more than close readings of these fascinating texts it demonstrates the important contribution of the roman noir to the cultural histories of post war France Vénus Noire Robin Mitchell, 2020-02-15 Even though there were relatively few people of color in postrevolutionary France images of and discussions about black women in particular appeared repeatedly in a variety of French cultural sectors and social milieus In Vénus Noire Robin Mitchell shows how these literary and visual depictions of black women helped to shape the country's postrevolutionary national identity particularly in response to the trauma of the French defeat in the Haitian Revolution Vénus Noire explores the ramifications of this defeat in examining visual and literary representations of three black women who achieved fame in the years that followed Sarah Baartmann popularly known as the Hottentot Venus represented distorted memories of Haiti in the French imagination and Mitchell shows how her display treatment and representation embodied residual anger harbored by the French Ourika a young Senegalese girl brought to live in France by the Marquis de Beauvau inspired plays poems and clothing and jewelry fads and Mitchell examines how the French appropriated black female identity through these representations while at the same time perpetuating stereotypes of the hypersexual black woman Finally Mitchell shows how demonization of Jeanne Duval longtime lover of the poet Charles Baudelaire expressed France's need to rid itself of black bodies even as images and discourses about these bodies proliferated The stories of these women carefully contextualized by Mitchell and put into dialogue with one another reveal a blind spot about race in French national identity that persists in the postcolonial present
