Multiple Criteria Decision Making by Multiobjective Optimization Ignacy Kaliszewski,Janusz Miroforidis,Dmitry Podkopaev,2016-08-02 This textbook approaches optimization from a multi aspect multi criteria perspective By using a Multiple Criteria Decision Making MCDM approach it avoids the limits and oversimplifications that can come with optimization models with one criterion The book is presented in a concise form addressing how to solve decision problems in sequences of intelligence modelling choice and review phases often iterated to identify the most preferred decision variant The approach taken is human centric with the user taking the final decision is a sole and sovereign actor in the decision making process To ensure generality no assumption about the Decision Maker preferences or behavior is made The presentation of these concepts is illustrated by numerous examples figures and problems to be solved with the help of downloadable spreadsheets This electronic companion contains models of problems to be solved built in Excel spreadsheet files Optimization models are too often oversimplifications of decision problems met in practice For instance modeling company performance by an optimization model in which the criterion function is short term profit to be maximized does not fully reflect the essence of business management The company s managing staff is accountable not only for operational decisions but also for actions which shall result in the company ability to generate a decent profit in the future This calls for management decisions and actions which ensure short term profitability but also maintaining long term relations with clients introducing innovative products financing long term investments etc Each of those additional though indispensable actions and their effects can be modeled separately case by case by an optimization model with a criterion function adequately selected However in each case the same set of constraints represents the range of company admissible actions The aim and the scope of this textbook is to present methodologies and methods enabling modeling of such actions jointly PC Mag ,1990-07 PCMag com is a leading authority on technology delivering Labs based independent reviews of the latest products and services Our expert industry analysis and practical solutions help you make better buying decisions and get more from technology PC Mag ,1992-06-16 PCMag com is a leading authority on technology delivering Labs based independent reviews of the latest products and services Our expert industry analysis and practical solutions help you make better buying decisions and get more from technology Bibliographic Guide to Business and Economics New York Public Library.
