Millenium Hall Sarah Scott, 1995-10-03 In 1750 at the age of twenty seven Sarah Scott published her first novel a conventional romance A year later she left her husband after only a few months of marriage and devoted herself thereafter to writing and to promoting such causes as the creation of secular and separatist female communities This revolutionary concept was given flesh in Millenium Hall first published in 1762 and generally thought to be the finest of her six novels The text may be seen as the manifesto of the bluestocking movement the protean feminism that arose under eighteenth century gentry capitalism originating in 1750 largely under the impetus of Scott's sister Elizabeth Montagu and that rejected a world which early feminists saw symbolized in the black silk stockings demanded by formal society It is a comment on Western society as well as on the strengths of Scott's novel that the message of Millenium Hall continues to resonate strongly more than two centuries later Toward the Millennium Peter Schäfer, 2018-09-24 This collection of 16 articles represents a selection of the papers delivered in the course of a seminar 1995 1996 at the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton and its concluding joint symposium held at the Institute and Princeton University Wide ranging in scope the volume covers

From the Ancient Near East to Christian Byzantium Mario Baghos, 2021-03-11 This book combines concepts from the history of religions with Byzantine studies in its assessments of kings symbols and cities in a diachronic and cross cultural analysis The work attests firstly that the symbolic art and architecture of ancient cities commissioned by their monarchs expressing their relationship with their gods show us that religiosity was inherent to such enterprises It also demonstrates that what transpired from the first cities in history to Byzantine Christendom is the gradual replacement of the pagan ruler cult which was inherent to city building in antiquity with the ruler becoming subordinate to Christ exemplified by representations of the latter as the Master of All Pantokrator Beginning in Mesopotamia the book continues with an analysis of city building by rulers in Egypt Greece and Rome before addressing Judaism specifically the city of Jerusalem and Christianity as shifting the emphasis away from pagan gods and rulers to monotheistic perceptions of God as elevated above worldly kings It concludes with an assessment of Christian Rome and Constantinople as typifying the evolution from the ancient and classical world to Christendom
