1,000,000...

It is very easy to talk about "millions" or "billions" without fully realizing just how large a number even one million is. The million dots on this poster give some idea, but can you find the answer to each of these questions?

- If each dot is a second, how long in days is a million seconds?
- If each dot is a page, how far would you get if you took a million pages?
- If each dot is a star, how high would you climb if a staircase had a million steps?
- If each dot is a person, how big an area is needed for a standing crowd of a million people?
- If each dot is a ton of sand, how many times would it take to carry a million tons of sand?
- If each dot is a sugar lump, how many times would it take to carry a million sugar lumps?
- If each dot is a coin, how far would a million coins stretch if they were placed edge to edge?
- If each dot is "one million" seconds, how long would it take to say "one million" one million times?
