Quinet,2018-03-22 The Will to Kill Making Sense of Senseless Murder is an academic yet engrossing exploration of extraordinary and seemingly inexplicable cases of homicide not to sensationalize them but because these are the cases that inform public opinion and policy Women Who Kill, Criminal Law and Domestic Abuse Rachel M.

McPherson,2023-10-16 This book presents an informed coherent and stimulating analysis of UK legal defences of homicide by victims of domestic abuse Women killing following domestic abuse from a male partner is a significant category of homicide In some areas of the UK it represents the most common context in which women kill Yet despite its significance it is an aspect of homicide that remains under researched within a UK context Much of what is known about cases of this type comes from other jurisdictions This book brings together a coherent understanding of the UK landscape in this area It builds upon existing literature particularly from the US which has examined this issue from a practical perspective using the lived experiences of practitioners involved in cases of this type The collection combines the experiences of those in practice with academic expertise pointing to potential sites of injustice that exist in this context and offering suggestions for reform The volume will be a valuable guide for those involved in cases of this nature whilst also offering insight to those academics with an interest in homicide and legal responses to domestic abuse The book will also be of interest to those working in the area of comparative criminal justice Infanticide in "Beloved" by Toni Morrison. What makes a mother kill her own children?

,2023-11-28 Seminar paper from the year 2020 in the subject Philosophy Miscellaneous University of Tübingen language English abstract This paper will explore what Sethe's reasons at the time were that she saw no other option than to kill her own children This question is best answered by first looking at the relationship of the women who live in the house with the number 124 Since the novel is set in 1873 it is incredibly important to deal with the impact that slavery has especially on the female characters I will then elaborate on the specific reasons that made Sethe kill her children underpinned by a close analysis of the moment when her owner finds them and Sethe kills Beloved Was it love a form of self protection or was it even an attempt to take possession and exercise power in the context of slavery In the end I will then summarise the main points why Sethe saw no other choice than to kill her own children Killing her own child is probably the most horrible act a loving mother can imagine But this is exactly what Sethe the main character of Beloved written by Toni Morrison in 1987 does Sethe is a former slave who experiences and survives various acts of physical and psychological violence all with the hope of being reunited with her children She eventually manages to escape while being pregnant with her fourth child but when her former owner finds her at the home of her mother in law she sees no choice but to kill her children Sethe carries this trauma silently with her for years declared an outcast by the community and aware that the ghost of the one girl she really killed lives with them under the same roof One day a young woman appears who bears the name of this dead daughter Beloved Morrison never really makes clear who this young girl is but and it is implied that this Beloved is the reincarnation of the daughter Sethe killed Gradually the two develop a dangerous obsession with each other rooted in the horrific act which can only be ended by an exorcism It is often debated if Sethe s decision was correct but the aim of this essay is not to examine whether she had the right to do it or not as the characters in the novel already do that by showing different reactions to Sethe s infanticide It is also not up to the reader to judge a former slave as the novel sends a far more important message not to forget the terrible things slavery did to people This paper will explore what Sethe s reasons at the time were that she saw no other option than to kill her own children Indian Journal of American Studies ,1984
