Pious Property:

Pious Property Bill Maurer, 2006-01-09 Owning a home has always been central to the American dream For the more than one million Muslims in the United States this is no exception However the Qur'an forbids the payment of interest which places conventional home financing out of reach for observant Muslims To meet the growing Muslim demand for home purchases a market for home financing that would be halal or permissible under Islamic law has emerged In Pious Property anthropologist William Maurer profiles the emergence of this new religiously based financial service and explores the ways it reflects the influence of Muslim practices on American economic life and vice versa Pious Property charts the development of Islamic mortgages in America starting with Islamic interpretations of the prohibition against riba literally translated as increase but interpreted as usury or interest Maurer then explores the different practices that have emerged as permissible options for Islamic homebuyers such as lease to own arrangements profit loss sharing and cost plus contracts and explains how they have gained acceptance in the Islamic community by relying on payment schemes that avoid standard interest rate payments Using interviews with Muslim homebuyers and financiers and in depth analysis of two companies that provide mortgage alternatives to Muslims Maurer discovers an interesting paradox progressive Muslims tend to use financial contracts that seemingly comply better with the prohibition against interest while traditional Muslims seem more inclined to take on financing very similar to interest based mortgages Maurer finds that Muslims make their decisions about using Islamic mortgage alternatives based not only on the views of religious scholars but also on their conceptions of how business is supposed to be conducted in America While one form of Islamic financing is seemingly more congruent with the prohibition against riba the other exhibits more of the qualities of American mortgages anonymity and standardized forms The appearance that an Islamic financing instrument is legal and professional leaves many Muslim homebuyers with the impression that it is halal revealing the influence of American capitalism on Muslim Americans understanding of their religious rules The market for halal financial products exists at the intersection of American and Islamic culture and is emblematic of the way that for centuries America's newcomers have adapted to and changed the fabric of American life In Pious Property William Maurer explores this rapidly growing economic phenomenon with historical perspective and scholarly insight

Pious Property Bill Maurer, 2006-01-09 Owning a home has always been central to the American dream For the more than one million Muslims in the United States this is no exception However the Qur'an forbids the payment of interest which places conventional home financing out of reach for observant Muslims To meet the growing Muslim demand for home purchases a market for home financing that would be halal or permissible under Islamic law has emerged In Pious Property anthropologist William Maurer profiles the emergence of this new religiously based financial service and explores the ways it reflects the influence of Muslim practices on American economic life and vice versa Pious Property charts the development of Islamic mortgages in America starting with Islamic interpretations of the prohibition against riba literally translated as increase but interpreted as usury or interest Maurer then explores the different practices that have emerged as permissible options for Islamic homebuyers such as lease to own arrangements profit loss sharing and cost plus contracts and explains how they have gained acceptance in the Islamic community by relying on payment schemes that avoid standard interest rate payments Using interviews with Muslim homebuyers and financiers and in depth analysis of two companies that provide mortgage alternatives to Muslims Maurer discovers an interesting paradox progressive Muslims tend to use financial contracts that seemingly comply better with the prohibition against interest while traditional Muslims seem more inclined to take on financing very similar to interest based mortgages Maurer finds that Muslims make their decisions about using Islamic mortgage alternatives based not only on the views of religious scholars but also on their conceptions of how business is supposed to be conducted in America While one form of Islamic financing is seemingly more congruent with the prohibition against riba the other exhibits more of the qualities of American mortgages anonymity and standardized forms The appearance that an Islamic financing instrument is legal and professional leaves many Muslim homebuyers with the impression that it is halal revealing the influence of American capitalism on Muslim Americans understanding of their religious rules The market for halal financial products exists at the intersection of American and Islamic culture and is emblematic of the way that for centuries America s newcomers have adapted to and changed the fabric of American life In Pious Property William Maurer explores this rapidly growing economic phenomenon with historical perspective and scholarly insight

Categories We Live By Ásta, 2018-07-05 We are women we are men We are refugees single mothers people with disabilities and queers We belong to social categories and they frame our actions self understanding and opportunities But what are social categories How are they created and sustained How does one come to belong to them sta approaches these questions through analytic feminist metaphysics Her theory of social categories centers on an answer to the question what is it for a feature of an individual to be socially meaningful In a careful probing investigation she reveals how social categories are created and sustained and demonstrates their tendency to oppress through examples from current events To this end she offers an account of just what social construction is and how it works in a range of examples that problematize the categories of sex gender and race in particular The main idea is that social categories are conferred upon people sta introduces a conferralist framework in order to articulate a theory of social meaning social construction and most importantly of the construction of sex gender race disability and other social categories

Desiring the Good Katja Maria Vogt, 2017-08-01 Vogt puts forward a novel version of the Guise of the Good the desire to have one s life go well shapes and sustains mid and small scale motivations Her book lays out a non relativist version of Protagoras s Measure Doctrine and defends a new realism about good human lives

The Ottoman 'Wild West' Nikolay Antov, 2017-12-28 In the late fifteenth century the north eastern Balkans were under populated and under institutionalized Yet by the end of the following century the regions of Deliorman and Gerlovo were home to one of the largest Muslim populations in southeast Europe Nikolay Antov sheds fresh light on the mechanics of Islamization along the Ottoman frontier and presents an instructive case study of the indigenization of Islam the process through which Islam in its diverse doctrinal and socio cultural manifestations became part of a distinct regional landscape Simultaneously Antov uses a wide array of administrative narrative literary and legal sources exploring the perspectives of both the imperial center and regional actors in urban rural and nomadic settings to trace the transformation of the Ottoman polity from a frontier principality into a centralized empire Contributing to the further understanding of Balkan Islam state formation and empire building this unique text will appeal to those studying Ottoman Balkan and Islamic world history Church Property: Whose is It? a Lecture ... Marmaduke Miller,1871 Documents Accompanying the Journal of the House Michigan. McPherran,2010-11-01 This study argues that to understand Socrates we must uncover and analyze his religious views since his philosophical and religious views are part of one seamless whole Mark McPherran provides a close analysis of the relevant Socratic texts an analysis that yields a comprehensive and original account of Socrates commitments to religion e g the nature of the gods the immortality of the soul McPherran contends that Socrates saw his religious commitments as integral to his philosophical mission of moral examination and in turn used the rationally derived convictions underlying that mission to reshape the religious conventions of his time As a result Socrates made important contributions to the rational reformation of Greek religion contributions that incited and informed the theology of his brilliant pupil Plato Supreme Court Judgement On Ayodhya Issue S.
