Thurston, 2012-01-01 The well being of rural communities affects the well being of those who reside in towns and cities because of rural urban connections through food drinking water infectious disease extreme environmental events recreation and for many retirement residence In rural areas themselves women play a critical role in the health of their families and communities yet women s health is often marginalized or ignored There have been limited studies to date about rural women and health in Canada Filling an important gap in scholarship this collection identifies priority issues that must be addressed to ensure these women s well being and offers innovative theoretical and methodological ideas for improvement Rural Women s Health integrates perspectives from rural practitioners residents and scholars in a variety of fields including nursing sociology anthropology and geography to tackle issues relevant to diverse settings across the country As such it presents a national perspective on the nature of women s health while respecting internal and regional diversity as well as viewpoints from international scholarship Creating This Place

Linda Cullum, Marilyn Porter, 2014-04-01 The twentieth century witnessed both the formation of Newfoundland as a self conscious national entity and the construction of distinct and self aware middle and upper classes in its capital city This interdisciplinary collection examines the key roles played by women in the creation of this state and society and the essential influence that gender ethnicity and religion played in class relations Shifting class relations were formed in the salient political events of the first half of the twentieth century in Newfoundland the First World War the suffrage movement the Great Depression the Second World War and finally Newfoundland s contested entry into the Canadian Confederation Creating This Place shows how upper middle and working class worlds were established in the everyday work of women as well as the ways in which the complex social boundaries of the period were constructed Individual chapters explore issues such as women s work in religious and voluntary institutions their struggle for voice suffrage and political change work of domestic servants and the construction of proper women and mothers through denominational education Creating This Place adopts an innovative perspective on Newfoundland and Labrador that focuses on the often overlooked lives of urban women Contributors include Sonja Boon Memorial University Linda Cullum Memorial University Margot Duley University of Illinois at Springfield Vicki Hallett Memorial University Jonathan Luedee doctoral candidate University of British Columbia Bonnie Morgan doctoral candidate University of New Brunswick Marilyn Porter emerita Memorial University Karen Stanbridge Memorial University Helen Woodrow Educational Planning and Design Associates and Harrish Press Publications

Feminisms and Ruralities Barbara Pini, Berit Brandth, Jo Little, 2014-12-18 Feminist concern with difference has rarely extended to rurality even if it is now widely recognized that experiences of inequality depend on intersections of several identities in each individual life This lack of concern may reflect the urban background of the majority of feminist academics or at least their urban positionality once in the academy It may equivalently be that feminists have been influenced by stereotypes of rural women as traditional and reactionary and thus seen them as unlikely exponents of gender equality and an unfruitful focus for scholarly energies Perhaps the problem is a broader one that is reflective of the much documented but still apparent unwillingness of many feminists to recognize and address difference in any of its manifestations Regardless even with the recent interest in intersectionality which has necessarily renewed and reenergized debates in feminism about diversity and inclusion the question of how women are differently positioned because of their non metropolitan location has remained largely overlooked

Social Transformation in Rural Canada John Parkins, Maureen Reed, 2012-10-20 The rapidly changing nature of life in Canadian rural communities is more than a simple response to economic conditions People living in rural places are part of a new social agenda characterized by transformation of livelihoods landscapes and social relations inviting us to reconsider the meanings of community culture and citizenship This volume presents the work of researchers from a variety of fields who explore social transformation in rural settlements across the country The essays collectively generate a nuanced portrait of how local forms of action adaptation identity and imagination are reshaping aboriginal and non aboriginal communities of rural Canada

Their Lives and Times Carmelita McGrath, Barbara Neis, Marilyn Porter, 1995 Their Lives and Times brings together in one place a lively mix of perspectives including previously published work and new research literary and scholarly work It will be equally at home in an academic setting or on the bookshelf of any reader interested in the diversity of women's experiences and the ways in which these experiences have been explored in new research and literature

Place and Persistence in the Lives of Newfoundland Women Marilyn Porter, 1993 Newfoundland is a little known island which lies in the cold Labrador current off the Atlantic coast of Canada While its proximity to the valuable Grand Banks fisheries made it one of the earliest parts of North America to be settled by Europeans Newfoundlanders this text argues have endured centuries of poverty and exploitation It contends that the brief burst of prosperity that followed their entry into the Canadian federation has now foundered in the present economic recession and the collapse of the fishery and that life in Newfoundland has returned to what it has always been a struggle for survival in a harsh environment

Revisiting Divisions of Labour Graham Crow, Jaimie Ellis, 2017-03-23 Revisiting divisions of labour is a reflection on the making of a modern sociological classic text and its enduring influence on the discipline and beyond Ray Pahl's 1984 book is distinctive in the sustained impact it has had on how sociologists think about research and report on the changing nature of work and domestic life In this timely revisiting of a landmark project excerpts from the original are interspersed with contributions from leading researchers reflecting on the book and its effects in the ensuing three decades The book will be of interest to researchers students and lecturers in sociology and related disciplines

Canada's Rural

Majority R.W. Sandwell, 2016-04-06 Before the Second World War Canada was a rural country Unlike most industrializing countries Canada's rural population grew throughout the century after 1871 even if it declined as a proportion of the total population Rural Canadians also differed in their lives from rural populations elsewhere In a country dominated by a harsh northern climate a short growing season isolated households and communities and poor land they typically relied on three ever shifting pillars of support the sale of cash crops subsistence from the local environment and wage work off the farm Canada's Rural Majority is an engaging and accessible history of this distinctive experience including not only Canada's farmers but also the hunters gardeners fishers miners loggers and cannery workers who lived and worked in rural Canada Focusing on the household the environment and the community Canada's Rural Majority is a compelling classroom resource and an invaluable overview of this understudied aspect of Canadian history Community Studies Graham

The Infinite Bonds of Family Cynthia R. Comacchio, 1999-01-01 With this book Cynthia Comacchio presents the first historical overview of domestic life in Canada showing how families have both changed and remained the same through transitions brought about by urbanization industrialization and war Women at Work, 1860-1939 Valerie G. Hall, 2013 A major contribution to women's history labour history and economic and social history This book examines three different groups of women in coal mining communities in inshore fishing communities and in agricultural labour It demonstrates how the work these groups undertook was fundamental in shaping their experiences as women in different ways and shows that women's experiences varied within class as well as between classes The book illustrates how mining women despite being restricted to domestic roles created through meticulous housekeeping a power base in their homes and rendered their husbands dependent on them while a minority took so active a role in politics that they were said to be the backbone of the Labour Party how fisher women engaging in a household economy reminiscent of pre modern times exercised great influence on financial decision making through their roles in baiting lines and selling fish and how some single female agricultural labourers exercised considerable autonomy whereas those who were tied in a family economy had little independence Overall the book makes a very significant contribution to women's history to labour history and to economic and social history This is a tremendously useful and relevant book for historians of women as well as social and labor historians Professor Joan Scott Institute of Advanced Studies Princeton University VALERIE HALL is Professor Emerita of History at William Peace University North Carolina
