A Place of their Own Ray Abrahams, 2006-06-01 Based on field research in eastern Finland not far from the Russian border this book is an account of the main features of rural society in the area It pays detailed attention to the adaptability of farming families in a rapidly changing world Subjects treated include marriage and the family work and mechanization succession to farms and the paradoxical combination of fierce individualism and cooperation Two major themes of the book are the relation between law and custom which is not always what it seems on the surface and the complex interlocking of farm family and the wider society

A Place of Their Own R. G. Abrahams, 1991-08-30 This is a study of family farming in eastern Finland It looks at the connections between farm and family and considers the significance of mechanization and other modern developments for the persistence of the family as a farming unit Here and in other contexts the author draws attention to the adaptability of families in a changing world

The Bounded Field Jaro Stacul, 2018-01-15 Regionalism is one of the most debated issues in contemporary western Europe Yet why the region rather than the nation state can have such a strong appeal for the construction of social and political identity remains largely unexplored Drawing on data collected in the mountainous Trentino region of northern Italy the author investigates how ideas about village boundaries and private property form the background against which regionalist ideologies are understood In suggesting that ideas about regionalism largely reflect views about private property he provides an alternative to theories of nationalism that overlook the articulation between official ideologies and discourses at the local level

Social Reproduction and History in Melanesia Robert John Foster, 1995-04-27 In much of Melanesia the process of social reproduction unfolds as a lengthy sequence of mortuary rites feast making and gift giving through which the living publicly define their social relations with each other while at the same time commemorating the deceased In this study Robert J Foster constructs an ethnographic account of mortuary rites in the Tanga Islands Papua New Guinea placing these large scale feasts and ceremonial exchanges in their historical context and demonstrating how the effects of participation in an expanding cash economy have allowed Tangans to conceive of the rites as customary in opposition to the new and foreign practices of business His examination synthesizes two divergent trends in Melanesian anthropology by emphasizing both the radical differences between Melanesian and Western forms of sociality and the conjunction of Melanesian and Western societies brought about by colonialism and capitalism Transforming the Rural Mara Miele, Vaughan Higgins, Hilde Bjørkhaug, Monica Truninger, 2017-07-18 This book analyses the key global processes transforming rural spaces in the early 21st century financialization standardization consumption and commodification Through detailed case studies the book examines why these processes are important how they work in practice and the challenges they raise as well as opportunities created The Anthropology of Numbers Thomas Crump, 1992-10-15 Numbers are an important feature of almost all known cultures In this detailed anthropological study Thomas Crump examines how people from a wide range of diverse cultures and from different historical backgrounds use and understand numbers By looking at the logical psychological and linguistic implications he analyses how numbers operate within different contexts The author goes on to consider the relationship of numbers to specific themes such as ethnoscience politics measurement time money music games and architecture The Anthropology of Numbers is an original contribution to scholarship written in a clear and accessible style It will be of interest to anthropologists who study cognition symbolism primitive thought and classification and to those in adjacent disciplines of psychology cognitive science and mathematical social science The Baltic World 1772-1993 David Kirby, 2014-07-15 This eagerly awaited sequel shares the characteristics of its distinguished predecessor wide geographical and chronological span expert mingling of political social and economic history and Dr Kirby's ability to keep the separate national threads of his account from tangling as he weaves them into the broad regional picture that is his main concern Here he tackles the
