Asian Revitalization Katie Cummer, 2021-01-11 Adaptive reuse refers to reusing an old building for a purpose other than which it was originally built or designed This conservation approach has become increasingly popular around the world However there are few publications that focus on its application in Asia This book fills this gap by looking at both unique and shared aspects of adaptive reuse in three Asian urban centers Hong Kong Shanghai and Singapore Building on government policy documents and extensive field work this book contextualizes adaptive reuse in each city and reveals the impetus behind a wide range of projects from revitalization in Hong Kong commercial development in Shanghai to community building in Singapore The introductory chapter sets adaptive reuse within an international perspective noting salient differences and similarities between Asia and other parts of the world It also anchors the discussion within a regional perspective focusing on the similarities and differences between Hong Kong Shanghai and Singapore Each of the following four essays addresses a specific topic about adaptive reuse including its relationship to urban development and sustainability how it benefits heritage buildings and how it reveals best practices in heritage conservation in Asia The subsequent three essays one for each city supplemented with timelines set out a clear framework for understanding the city specific case studies that follow the essays Afterwards fifteen representative projects across the three cities are presented as in depth case studies The pairing of essays and case studies provides a detailed understanding of each city's approach to adaptive reuse in the twenty first century a time when the need for sustainable development solutions are at the forefront Intended for classroom use and professional readership this book will be of considerable value in Asia as well as elsewhere providing material for stimulating and worthwhile discussion

Asian Revitalization is a highly practical and accessible volume on the long established conservation practice of adaptive reuse in East Asia Its focus on real life issues examples and challenges posed by revitalization programs in the region is extremely relevant to researchers and practitioners in architectural conservation urban design and urban studies Miles Glendinning University of Edinburgh Scotland This is a superb well documented and original book written by some of the best known and highly respected authors in the field of heritage conservation The carefully examined case studies illustrate a wide variety of solutions that highlight the work of some of the best minds of the next generations Alastair Kerr University of Victoria Canada This is a most interesting set of essays informative and thought provoking The best way to save any heritage building is by keeping it in beneficial use and how to achieve this in a sensitive manner is what these essays are about They should be vital reading for anyone considering an adaptive reuse project in Asia Michael Morrison Purcell UK With cultural heritage firmly ensconced in the global development agendas of the United Nations this well grounded volume draws upon the experience of Hong Kong SAR Shanghai and Singapore to demonstrate to scholars and practitioners alike how historic properties can be sustained through savvy adaptive reuse in the midst of tremendous urban redevelopment pressures

The societies were subject to similar geopolitical relations with the United States they were incorporated into the same sequence of world economic system relations initially fur trade and then the cotton market they experienced the emergence of class structures and they all produced some form of constitutional democracy The Cherokee however adopted a stable constitutional government earlier and with less coercion than the other three nations Why was this so With the aid of comparative analysis the author finds the answer in the Cherokee differentiation of politics from the nationally and religiously ordered clan system This set of institutional relations allowed the Cherokee to maintain a strong sense of social solidarity while tolerating conflict increased political differentiation and formation of a political nationality The other three societies were either less differentiated or less socially unified They formed their constitutional governments thirty to forty years later than the Cherokee and with more internal political coercion and in the Creek case with less political stability The formation and stabilization of democratic state governments is a major issue in such contemporary phenomena as political change in Third World nations and the transformation of the governments of Eastern Europe The four case studies presented in this book form the basis of a new and powerful theoretical argument for understanding historical patterns of democratic change political stability and the relations of political power toward the mountains surrounding the city This elaborate network maintained by ayllus kin groups that made offerings to the shrines in their area organized the city both temporally and spiritually From 1990 to 1995 Brian Bauer directed a major project to document the ceque system of Cusco In this book he synthesizes extensive archaeological survey work with archival research into the Inca social groups of the Cusco region their land holdings and the positions of the shrines to offer a comprehensive empirical description of the ceque system Moving well beyond previous interpretations Bauer constructs a convincing model of the system s physical form and its relation to the social political and territorial organization of Cusco
