Read, 2019-01-21 During the mid 1980s Latin American colonial studies came to be dominated by the various post movements post structuralism post modernism post Marxism characterized by their promotion of discursivity as the ultimate horizon of sociality This volume confronts discourse theory and examples of its colonial application with an alternative Althusserian problematic that foregrounds modes of production and class struggle to which end it further promotes a view of colonial societies as split not along a horizontal geographic axis that offsets the New World against Europe but vertically through the opposition between dominant tributary feudal formations and their emergent capitalist equivalent Its fundamental claim is that the radical sounding rhetoric of the various post movements far from energizing the politics of resistance to the forces of imperialism actually greases the mechanisms of finance capital      The subjectivity of local place specific time and particular culture Wright aims to address the lack of any substantial and sustained engagement between critical realism and theological critical realism with particular regard to a the distinctive ontological claims of Christianity b their epistemic warrant and intellectual legitimacy and c scrutiny of the primary source of the ontological claims of Christianity namely the historical figure of Jesus of Nazareth As such it functions as a prolegomena to a much needed wider debate guided by the under labouring services of critical realism between Christianity and various other religious and secular worldviews This important new text will help stimulate a debate that has yet to get out of first gear This book will appeal to academics graduate and post graduate students especially but also Christian clergy ministers and informed laity and members of the general public concerned with the nature of religion and its place in contemporary society
