Making Markets:

Making Markets Mitchel Y. Abolafia, 2001-10-30 In the wake of million dollar scandals brought about by Michael Milken Ivan Boesky and their like Wall Street seems like the province of rampant individualism operating at the outermost extremes of self interest and greed But this Mitchel Abolafia suggests would be a case of missing the real culture of the Street for the characters who dominate the financial news Making Markets an ethnography of Wall Street culture offers a more complex picture of how the market and its denizens work Not merely masses of individuals striving independently markets appear here as socially constructed institutions in which the behavior of traders is suspended in a web of customs norms and structures of control Within these structures we see the actions that led to the Drexel Burnham and Salomon Brothers debacles not as bizarre aberrations but as mere exaggerations of behavior accepted on the Street Abolafia looks at three subcultures that coexist in the world of Wall Street the stock bond and futures markets Through interviews anecdotes and the author's skillful analysis we see how traders and New York Stock Exchange specialists negotiate the perpetual tension between short term self interest and long term self restraint that marks their respective communities and how the temptation toward excess spurs market activity We also see the complex relationships among those market communities why for instance NYSE specialists resent the freedoms permitted over the counter bond traders and futures traders Making Markets shows us that what propels Wall Street is not a fundamental human drive or instinct but strategies enacted in the context of social relationships cultural idioms and institutions a cycle that moves between phases of unbridled self interest and collective self restraint

Making Markets in the Welfare State Jane R. Gingrich, 2011-06-23 Over the past three decades market reforms have transformed public services such as education health and care of the elderly Whereas previous studies present markets as having similar and largely non political effects this book shows that political parties structure markets in diverse ways to achieve distinct political aims Left wing attempts to sustain the legitimacy of the welfare state are compared with right wing wishes to limit the state and empower the private sector Examining a broad range of countries time periods and policy areas Jane R Gingrich helps readers make sense of the complexity of market reforms in the industrialized world The use of innovative multi case studies and in depth interviews with senior European policymakers enriches the debate and brings clarity to this multifaceted topic Scholars and students working on the policymaking process in this central area will be interested in this new conceptualization of market reform

Making Markets in Australian Agriculture Patrick O'Keeffe, 2019-01-21 This book provides a genealogical study of Australian agricultural restructuring focusing on the case study of wheat export market deregulation This policy shift was implemented in 2008 ending 60 years of statutory wheat marketing At the time policy makers claimed that market liberalisation would empower individual growers providing them with choice and freedom through uninhibited participation in markets However regional wheat markets have become concentrated and are increasingly controlled by a small number of transnational agribusiness firms which have been increasingly active in setting the policy agenda in Australian agriculture The book delves into the discursive construction of policy truths such as efficiency competition and the consumer to understand how this shift was made possible whose interests have been served and what the implications of this shift have been This book focuses on the machinations which contributed to this shift by examining the construction of knowledge values and identities which have helped to make the transition from the public to the private appear as a logical common sense solution to the challenges facing Australian agriculture The author shows how governmental technologies such as audit cost benefit analysis performance objectives and the consumer were used to make this reality operable In doing so he argues that this shift should be viewed as part of the broader restructuring of Australian society which has facilitated the transference of economic and policy making power from the public to the private

Making Markets Making Place Benjamin Coles, 2021-05-03 This book examines place and place making in London's Borough Market In particular it uses topography place writing to interrogate the ways in which Borough Market's material social sensual and discursive relations assemble to reproduce Borough Market as a place market and marketplace Its central premise is that market processes the negotiation and exchange of commodities are place processes This means that the often abstract relationships that ultimately define what we think of as the economy are embedded in the rich and every materiality sociality sensuality and meanings associated with place By tracing out these different elements topography illustrates the ways in which economic reproduction is grounded in particular and often discrete practices However by assembling them together this highlights the ways in which place and place making are the driving force behind the economy at large

The Making of the Populist Movement Adam Slez, 2020-08-19 When it comes to explaining the origins of electoral populism in the United States we often look to the characteristics and conditions of voters overlooking the reasons why populist candidates emerge in the first place In The Making of the Populist Movement Adam Slez argues that the rise of electoral populism in the American West was a strategic response to a political environment in which the configuration of positions was literally locked in place precluding the success of new contenders or otherwise marginal competitors Combining traditional forms of historical inquiry with innovations in network analysis and spatial statistics he shows how the expansion of state and market drove the push for market regulation in southern Dakota where an insurgent farmers movement looked to third party alternatives as a means of affecting change In the context of western settlement the struggle for political power was synonymous with the struggle for position in an emerging urban hierarchy As inequities in the spatial distribution of resources became more pronounced appeals to agrarian populism became a powerful political tool with which to wage partisan war Offering a fresh take on the origins of electoral populism in the United States The Making of the Populist Movement contributes to our understanding of political action by explicitly linking the evolution of the political field to the transformation of physical space through concerted action on the part of elites

Markets Patrik Aspers, 2013-05-08 Our lives have gradually become dominated by markets They are not only at the heart of capitalistic economies all over the world but also central in public debates This insightful book brings together existing knowledge on markets from sociology economics and anthropology and systematically investigates the different forms of markets we encounter daily in our social lives Aspers starts by defining what a market actually is analyzing its essential elements as well as its necessary preconditions and varied consequences An important theme in the book is that a whole host of markets are embedded within one other and in social life at large and Aspers discusses these in the context of other forms of economic coordination such as networks and organizations Combining theory with empirical examples the book cuts to the core of understanding how different markets function the role they have played in history and how they come into being This accessible and theoretically rich book will be essential reading for upper level students seeking to make sense of markets and their complex role in social life
