Frank O'Hara and the Poetics of Saying 'I' Micah Mattix, 2011-03-03 While recent works of criticism on Frank O Hara have focused on the technical similarities between his poetry and painting or between his use of language and poststructuralism Frank O Hara and the Poetics of Saying I argues that what is most significant in O Hara s work is not such much his borrowing from painters or his proto Derridean use of language but his preoccupation with self exploration and the temporal effects of his work as artifacts Following Pasternak s understanding of artistic inspiration as an act of love for the material world O Hara explores moments of experience in an effort to both complicate and enrich our experience of the material world On the one hand in poems such as Second Avenue for example O Hara works to muddy language through which experience is in part mediated with the use of parataxis allusions and absurd metaphors and similes On the other in his I do this I do that poems he names the events of his lunch hour in an effort among other things to experience time as a moment of fullness rather than as a moment of loss The book argues furthermore that O Hara s view of the self as both an expression of the creative force at work in the world and as the temporal aggregate of finite experiences places him between so called Romantic and postmodern theories of the lyric While it is often argued that O Hara is a forerunner of a new critically informed materialist poetics this study concludes that O Hara s work is somewhat less radical in its understanding of poetic meaning than is often claimed Moreover while O Hara is preoccupied with his experience in his poems the book argues that he espouses in some respects a rather traditional view of love In addition to being a metaphor for the creative act love for O Hara is the chance coming together of two entities Yet one of the ironies of this is that while love is for O Hara a feeling that is the result of movement or the unexpected coming together of two otherwise separ

John Ashbery and American Poetry David Herd, 2024-07-30 David Herd sets out to provide readers with a new critical language through which they can appreciate the beauty and complexity of Ashbery s writing Presenting the poet in all his forms avant garde nostalgic sublime and camp the book argues that the perpetual inventiveness of Ashbery s work has always been underpinned by the poets desire to write the poem fit to cope with its occasion Tracing Ashbery s development in the light of this idea and from its origins in the dazzling artistic environment of 1950 s New York the book evaluates his poetry against the aesthetic literary and historical backgrounds that have informed it The story of a brilliant career and a history of the period in which that career has taken shape John Ashbery and American Poetry provides critical cliché that Cervantes Don Quixote is the first modern novel but this distinction raises two fundamental questions First how does one define a novel And second what is the relationship between this genre and understandings of modernity In Forms of Modernity Rachel Schmidt examines how seminal theorists and philosophers have wrestled with the status of Cervantes masterpiece as an exemplary novel in turn contributing to the emergence of key concepts within genre theory Schmidt s discussion covers the views of well known thinkers such as Friedrich Schlegel Jos Ortega y Gasset and Mikhail Bakhtin but also the pivotal contributions of philosophers such as Hermann Cohen and Miguel de Unamuno These theorists examinations of Cervantes s fictional knight errant character point to an ever shifting boundary between the real and the virtual Drawing from both intellectual and literary history Forms of Modernity richly explores the development of the categories and theories that we use today to analyze and understand novels

British Autobiography in the Seventeenth Century Paul Delany, 2015-08-14 Originally published in 1969 In the seventeenth century neither the literary genre nor the term autobiography existed but we see in seventeenth century literature many kinds of autobiographical writings to which their authors gave such titles as Journal of the Life of Me Confessions etc This work is a study of nearly two hundred of these published and unpublished which together represent a very varied group of writings The book begins with an examination of the rise of autobiography as a genre during the Renaissance It discusses seventeenth century autobiographical writings under two main headings religious where the autobiographies are grouped according to the denomination of their writer and secular where a wide variety of writings is examined including accounts of travel and of military and political life as well as more personal accounts Autobiographies by women are treated separately and the author shows that they in general have a deeper revelation of sentiments and more subtle self analyses than is found in comparable works by men Sources and influences are recorded and also the essential historical details of each work This book gives a critical analysis of the autobiographies as literary works and suggests relationships between them and the culture and society of their time Review of the original publication a contribution to cultural history which is of quite exceptional merit Its subject is of great intrinsic interest and manifest importance and Professor Delany has treated it with exemplary thoroughness lucidity and intelligence Lionel Trilling
