Who Writes Arab History? Joseph A. Kéchichian, 2016-09-01 At a time of profound regional and international transformations that extend beyond the political Middle Easterners in general and Arabs in particular ponder their future as well as how to best preserve and protect their interests and equally important their cultures As non Arabs interpret and opine about Arab civilization far more than indigenous thinkers how can we understand what motivates scholars and opinion makers and how can Arab analysts highlight indigenous perspectives What are the core factors that separate non Arab scholars from their Arab counterparts Can the perceptions of nearly 500 million individuals be mislabeled so frequently and so easily and what ought to be done to repair the damage already done Do Arab thinkers bear any responsibility for what may appear to be little more than a campaign to denigrate To answer these questions this paper first offers an overview of the dilemmas involved then identifies and analyses two major concerns censorship and translation matters and finally focuses on the case of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia to test the assertion that books authored by non Arabs many of whom shroud themselves in the cloak of authority but in reality harbor a sharp dislike if not outright hatred of Arabs dominate over works written by Arabs The paper closes with a few recommendations that call on Arab thinkers to overcome existing academic as well as journalistic prejudices

The Muslim Contribution to Mathematics Ali Abdullah Al-Daffa', 2020-09-10 This book first published in 1977 discusses the Muslim contribution to mathematics during the golden age of Muslim learning from the seventh to the thirteenth century It was during this period that Muslim culture exerted powerful economic political and religious influence over a large part of the civilised world The work of the Muslim scholars was by no means limited to religion business and government They researched and extended the theoretical and applied science of the Greeks and Romans of an earlier era in ways that preserved and strengthened man's knowledge in these important fields. Although the main object of this book is to trace the history of the Muslim contribution to mathematics during the European Dark Ages, some effort is made to explain the progress of mathematical thought and its effects upon present-day culture. Certain Muslim mathematicians are mentioned because of the important nature of their ideas in the evolution of mathematical thinking during this earlier era. Muslim mathematicians invented the present arithmetical decimal system and the fundamental operations connected with it: addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, raising to a power, and extracting the square root and the cubic root. They also introduced the zero symbol to Western culture, which simplified considerably the entire arithmetical system and its fundamental operations. It is no exaggeration if it is said that this specific invention marks the turning point in the development of mathematics into a science. Islam and the West Christopher J Walker, 2005-07-21. We have rapidly grown used to the idea, particularly since the declaration of a worldwide war on terrorism, that between Islam and the West there exists a deep historical and ideological gulf. Christopher J Walker turns such accepted views on their head and paints instead a picture of two belief systems that have a long history of toleration and mutual influence. Indeed, Islam has given a great deal to civilisation: essentially modern notions of free enquiry, rational experimentation, rational experimentation, and the independence of science from religious authority are legacies of the Islamic world. Islam and the West is a thought-provoking study covering some of the cardinal encounters between Islamic and Western countries.

Travel and Translation in the Early Modern Period Carmine Di Biase, 2006. The relationship between travel and translation might seem obvious at first, but to study it in earnest is to discover that it is at once intriguing and elusive. Of course, travelers translate in order to make sense of their new surroundings; sometimes they must translate in order to put food on the table. The relationship between these two human compulsions, however, goes much deeper than this. What gets translated, it seems, is not merely the written or the spoken word, but the very identity of the traveler. These seventeen essays, which treat not only such well-known figures as Martin Luther, Erasmus, Shakespeare, and Milton, but also such lesser-known figures as Konrad Grunenberg, Leo Africanus, and Garcilaso de la Vega, constitute the first survey of how this relationship manifests itself in the early modern period. Who's who in the Arab World, 1966. Maker of Modern Arabia Ameen Fares Rihani, 1928. Arab Cultural Studies Anastasia Valassopoulos, 2013-09-13. This book seeks to both showcase and further develop innovative research and debates on contemporary Arab cultural production. Popular culture in the form of cinema, popular music, literature, visual media, and cyber cultures, both local and imported, enjoy a central role in Arab cultural life, and the contributors to this innovative collection showcase the tremendous cultural output emerging from the Arab world. They present sensitive conceptual readings whilst remaining mindful of the place of this work within a wider framework that seeks to prevent isolationist readings of cultural phenomena. Making sense of the place of culture in the Arab world and agreeing upon a broadly recognisable and commonly accepted set of terms within which to discuss this output is a new and urgent challenge Arab Cultural Studies aspires to understand communicate and theorise these forms This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal for Cultural Research Encyclopedia of African History Kevin Shillington,2005 Offers more than one thousand entries covering all aspects of African history civilization and culture
