considers how the domestic interior is constituted, imagined, contested and mediated in the public forum of advice literature. It interrogates the construction and negotiation of aesthetic femininity and domestic modernity within the larger contexts of the New Journalism, the New Art Criticism, a new girls culture and the emerging New Woman phenomenon in Britain. This book presents extensive new research on women-authored advice literature including domestic advice manuals, home decoration books and periodicals for young girls and adult women within the discourse of household art. Part One justifies girls' presence in the cultivation of beauty and taste at home. The practice of home decoration can be appropriated as a mode of agency and subjectivity for a girl to articulate her own voice and specific positioning as she grows toward womanhood. Part Two uncovers the ways in which advice literature serves as a mediator of decorating practices to help foster the affinities between gentlewomen's domestic bodies and decorated interiors. Aimed at an interdisciplinary audience, this book adds to the growing body of scholarship on the studies of home, cultures, art and interior design, nineteenth-century studies and the social history of women.

History in the Early Years Hilary Cooper, 2002-01-04. Until recently, history was sometimes seen as being inappropriate for young children. Increasingly, however, teachers are discovering that children enjoy finding out about the past, yet researchers are often unsure about what counts as real history. Hilary Cooper explains the strands of thinking involved in historical enquiry at any level, the extent to which pre-school children can think in this way and how teachers can build on this thinking once children are in school, making history an integral part of good practice. The book includes case studies to illustrate points and activities.
