Making Of Le Voyage:

The Making of Feudal Agricultures? Miquel Barceló, François Sigaut, 2004-02-01 Was there a discernible set of changes in the techniques of arable farming animal husbandry and their associated technologies at the end of antiquity which marked a clear break with an established ancient world economy and ushered in the new agricultures of the early middle ages Were such changes not already visible in antiquity And what was the impact of political economic social and environmental change in these processes The 6 papers in this volume reject simple evolutionary models charting progress from protohistory to the Roman period to the Dark Ages to the Middle Ages and insisted rather on the notion of inheritance so that the farming economy laid down in protohistoric times continued to exist during the early Middle Ages The collapse of a capitalistic commercial economy of the later Roman Empire though accompanied by political and military crises did not entail a regression of the farming economy The growth in farming in the 8th 9th C resting on a demographic increase combined with intensive land clearance episodes owed much to the preceding centuries the change resides more in an intensification than in the introduction of new features With contributions by Pascal Reigniez Catherine Rommelaere Georges Raepsaet G Comet Aline Durand and Philippe Leveau sixteenth century to the twentieth century It deploys the concept of encounter rather than the more common idea of first contact for several reasons Encounters with Europeans occurred in the context of extensive prior encounters and exchanges between Pacific peoples manifest in the distribution of languages and objects and in patterns of human settlement and movement The concept of encounter highlights the mutuality in such meetings of bodies and minds whereby preconceptions from both sides were brought into confrontation dialogue mutual influence and ultimately mutual transformation It stresses not so much prior visions of strangers or others but the contingencies in events of encounter and how senses other than vision were crucial in shaping reciprocal appraisals But a stress on mutual meanings and interdependent agencies in such cross cultural encounters should not occlude the tumultuous misunderstandings political contests and extreme violence which also characterised Indigenous European interactions over this period
