Making Forest Policy Work:

Making Forest Policy Work A.I. Fraser, 2013-04-17 Policy issues relating to forestry have been the subject of much debate in recent years and many countries and international agencies have recently or are currently in the process of revising their policies for forestry. Much of this debate has implied that previous policies have failed or been much less successful than had been hoped. There is a tendency to think of policy as a matter for governments but it is now more widely appreciated that all shareholders in the forestry sector have a legitimate interest in both the policy objectives and the means that will be used to implement it. This book is mainly concerned with the process of developing policy and the subsequent implementation than in specific content though many of the important issues which policies must address are discussed. It is based on a review of many case studies with which the author has been personally involved over the past 40 years. Making forest concessions in the tropics work to achieve the 2030 Agenda Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2018-07-30 The specific objective of these Voluntary Guidelines is to promote the sustainable management of public production natural forests in tropical countries through forest concessions thereby fulfilling their potential contribution to the achievement of Agenda 2030. Forest concession regimes are treated here as forest policy instruments and should be aligned with the sustainable forest management objectives agreed by countries in the UNFF. The current Guidelines intend to serve as guidance for making forest concessions an effective economic instrument of forest policy in the context of the 2030 Agenda transforming them into an instrument capable of delivering sustainable forest management in all its dimensions and generating socio economic benefits to relevant stakeholders. Protocol for Somatic Embryogenesis in Woody Plants Shri Mohan Jain, Pramod K. Gupta, 2005-05-23 World population is increasing at an alarming rate and this has resulted in increasing tremendously the demand for tree products such as wood for construction materials, fuel and paper, fruits, oils and medicines etc. This has put immense pressure on the world's supplies of trees and raw material to industry and will continue to do so as long as human population continues to grow. Also the quality of human diet, especially nutritional components, is adversely affected due to limited genetic improvement of most of fruit trees. Thus there is an immediate need to increase productivity of trees. Improvement has been made through conventional breeding methods however conventional breeding is very slow due to long life cycle of trees. A basic strategy in tree improvement is to capture genetic gain through clonal propagation. Clonal propagation via organogenesis is being used for the production of selected elite individual trees. However the methods are labour intensive, costly and produce low volumes. Genetic gain can now be captured through somatic embryogenesis. Formation of embryos from somatic cells by a process resembling zygotic embryogenesis is one of the most important features of plants. In 1958 Reinert in Germany and Steward in USA independently reported somatic embryogenesis in carrot cultures. Since then tremendous progress in somatic embryogenesis of woody and non woody plants has taken place. It offers a potentially large scale propagation system for superior clones. Pulp and Paper Magazine of Canada, 1919

Cultural Hybridity and the Environment Kirsten Maclean, 2015-02-07 This book highlights the importance of diversity in overcoming issues of social and environmental degradation It presents conceptual and practical strategies to celebrate local and Indigenous knowledge for improved community development and environmental management David Harvey has proclaimed The geography we make must be a peoples geography This clarion call challenges geographers around the world to consider the power and potential of geographic knowledge as the basis for social action a call this book answers providing readers the theoretical and conceptual tools needed to understand the social world and empowering them to mobilize social change The author uses empirical case studies of two environmental management and community development projects to document how knowledge generation is essentially locally situated and socially derived In doing so she charts a path for moving beyond what Vandana Shiva so aptly describes as monocultures of the mind The book argues that local and Indigenous knowledge must not be seen in opposition to scientific knowledge as none of these knowledge traditions hold all the answers to localized socio environmental problems Rather as the author explores through a set of processes and strategies to enable support and celebrate cultural hybridity at the local environmental governance scale these respective knowledge systems can learn to speak to each other Such dialogue has the potential to support more sustainable outcomes at multiple environmental governance locales This book will be of interest to everyone involved in environmental policy planning or politics and for those who want to make this planet a more sustainable and just place The 'journey'

Post-Faustmann Forest Resource Economics Shashi Kant, 2013-02-11 The current paradigm of forest economics is based on Faustmann Formulation FF of land expectation value proposed by Martin Faustmann It was a great achievement by a forester to propose a formulation that captures some fundamental economic features of capital theory which However the followers of the FF approach have trapped themselves into the past and have not shown any indication of economic acumen of the great Faustmann This has resulted in a common problem in the current paradigm of forest economics known as Faustmann Forest Resource Economics FFRE to prescribe the application of a single FF approach to all situations irrespective of the specific features of the situation The current state of forest economics is similar to that of neoclassical economics and is full of inefficiencies In neoclassical economics inefficiencies are due to its locked in position in rational economic man while in forest economics inefficiencies are due to its locked in position in the FF The focus of this volume is on the new paradigm of forest economics termed as Post Faustmann Forest Resource Economics PFFRE The first chapter lays the foundation of the PFFRE and presents the key distinctions between the FFRE and the PFFRE The volume includes twelve other chapters that address issues related to forest economics from perspectives different than the FFRE Chapter 2 to 6 are focused on issues related to human behavior that is different than the rational economic man Chapter 7 and 8 on public choice theory Chapter 9 and 10 on systems approaches and Chapter 11 to 13 on incremental approaches to incorporate new features in the FFRE
