lives are shaped by racism discrimination and gender Thus the foremost goal in the minds of most parents is to prepare their children to succeed by instilling protective character traits The authors show that Asian American and particularly Korean American family life is constantly shifting as children and parents strive to accommodate each other even as they forge their own paths toward healthy and satisfying American lives This book contributes a rare ethnography of family life following them through the transition from teenagers into young adults to a field that has largely considered the immigrant and second generation in isolation from one another Combining qualitative and quantitative methods and focusing on both generations this book makes the case for delving more deeply into the ideas of immigrant parents and their teens about raising children and growing up in America ideas that defy easy classification as Korean or American
