Descriptive captions coloring information for each royalty free illustration Apes, Monkeys, Children, and the Growth of Mind Juan Carlos Gómez, 2009-07 What can the study of young monkeys and apes tell us about the minds of young humans? In this fascinating introduction to the study of primate minds Juan Carlos Gomez identifies evolutionary resemblances and differences between human children and other primates. He argues that primate minds are best understood not as fixed collections of specialized cognitive capacities but more dynamically as a range of abilities that can surpass their original adaptations. In a lively overview of a distinguished body of cognitive developmental research among nonhuman primates Gomez looks at knowledge of the physical world causal reasoning including the chimpanzee like errors that human children make and the contentious subjects of ape language theory of mind and imitation Attempts to teach language to chimpanzees as well as studies of the quality of some primate vocal communication in the wild make a powerful case that primates have a natural capacity for relatively sophisticated communication and considerable power to learn when humans teach them Gomez concludes that for all cognitive psychology s interest in perception information processing and reasoning some essential functions of mental life are based on ideas that cannot be explicitly articulated Nonhuman and human primates alike rely on implicit knowledge Studying nonhuman primates helps us to understand this perplexing aspect of all primate minds The Social Life of Monkeys and Apes Solly Zuckerman, Solly Baron Zuckerman, 1999 First Published in 1999 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company

The Gestural Communication of Apes and Monkeys Josep Call, Michael Tomasello, 2020-08-18 The Gestural Communication of Apes and Monkeys is an intriguing compilation of naturalistic and experimental research conducted over the course of 20 years on gestural communication in primates as well as a comparison to what is known about the vocal communication of nonhuman primates The editors also make systematic comparisons to the gestural communication of prelinguistic and just linguistic human children An enlightening exploration unfolds into what may represent the starting point for the evolution of human communication and language This especially significant read is organized into nine chapters that discuss the gestural repertoire of chimpanzees gestures in orangutans subadult gorillas and siamangs gestural communication in Barbary macaques and a comparison of the gestures of apes and monkeys This book will appeal to psychologists anthropologists and linguists interested in the evolutionary origins of language and or gestures as well as to all primatologists A CD insert offers video of gestures for each of the species

'Language' and Intelligence in Monkeys and Apes Sue Taylor Parker, Kathleen Rita Gibson, 1994-01-28 This is the first collection of articles completely and explicitly devoted to the new field of comparative developmental evolutionary psychology that is to studies of primate abilities based on frameworks drawn from developmental psychology and evolutionary biology These frameworks include Piagetian and neo Piagetian models as well as psycholinguistic ones. The articles in this collection originating in Japan, Spain, Italy, France, Canada, and the United States represent a variety of backgrounds in human and nonhuman primate research including psycholinguistics, developmental psychology, cultural and physical anthropology, ethology, and comparative psychology. The book focuses on such areas as the nature of culture, intelligence, language, and imitation; the differences among species in mental abilities and developmental patterns; and the evolution of life histories and of mental abilities and their neurological bases. The species studied include the African grey parrot, cebus and macaque monkeys, gorillas, orangutans, and both common and pygmy chimpanzees.
