Population Resources And Development Vol 1 Riding The Age Waves:

Population, Resources and Development Shripad Tuljapurkar, Ian Pool, Vipan Prachuabmoh, 2005-07-22 In the 21st century the populations of the world's nations will display large and long lived changes in age structure. Many of these began with fertility change and are amplified by declining mortality and by migration within and between nations. Demography will matter in this century not by force of numbers but by the pressures of waves of age structural change. Many developing countries are in relatively early stages of fertility decline and will experience age waves for two or more generations. These waves create shifting flows of people into the key age groups greatly complicating the task of managing development from building human capabilities and creating jobs to growing industry infrastructure and institutions. In this book distinguished scientists examine key demographic, social, economic and policy aspects of age structural change in developing economies. This book provides a joint examination of dimensions of age structural change that have often been considered in isolation from each other for example education, job creation, land use, health. It uses case studies to examine policy consequences and options and develops qualitative and formal methods to analyze the dynamics and consequences of age structural change.

Allocating Public and Private Resources across Generations Anne H. Gauthier, C.Y. Cyrus Chu, Shripad Tuljapurkar, 2007-08-24 This book explores how demographic changes affect inter generational transfers of time, money, goods and services, all things that play a role in the well being of individuals and families. It details the nature and measurement of transfers, their motives and mechanisms and their macro level dimensions especially in the context of demographic transitions. Coverage includes original empirical analyses of datasets from some twenty countries and extends the traditional analysis of inter generational transfers by examining different types of transfers. Ageing in Advanced

Industrial States Shripad Tuljapurkar, Naohiro Ogawa, Anne H. Gauthier, 2010-08-02 Population growth slowed across the world in the last decades of the 20th century, changing substantially our view of the future. The 21st century is likely to see the end to world population growth and become the century of population aging, marked by low fertility and ever increasing life expectancy. These trends have prompted many to predict a gloomy future caused by an unprecedented economic burden of population aging. In response, industrialized nations will need to implement effective social and economic policies and programs. This is the final volume in a series of three. The papers included explore many examples and strengthen the basis for effective economic and social policies by investigating the economic, social and demographic consequences of the transformations in the structures of population and family. These consequences include changes in economic behavior both in labor and financial markets and with regard to saving and consumption and intergenerational transfers of money and care.

Wójtowicz,Jadwiga Gałka,2019-09-20 This book explores demographic changes in Functional Urban Areas FUAs in Poland since 1990 Functional Urban Areas introduced by ESPON refer to functional territorial units that can be defined as travel to work area representing strong integration between urban cores and their immediate hinterland The functional urban area consists of a city plus its commuting zone It fills a significant gap in the academic literature by providing a deep and thorough analysis of the process of population change in Polish FUAs over the past 30 years In particular this empirical research work addresses population growth and decline the main components of population growth including fertility mortality and migration age composition and the pace of population ageing The book argues that the transformations of urban structures are triggered by second demographic transition SDT and suburbanization processes Based on data from the Central Statistical Office this comparative study on FUAs in Poland which employs a division into core and commuting zones reveals essential similarities and differences in population development making it possible to construct a demographic typology of FUAs and investigate their spatial arrangements A unique and innovative book it will appeal to geographers demographers urbanists city planners and policymakers as well as students academic researchers and others involved in urban studies     Demographic Research Volume 19 Book 5 Joshua R. in Asia: School, Work, and Family Life Wei-Jun Jean Yeung, Cheryll Alipio, Frank F. Furstenberg, Jr., 2013-03-07 In the past decade or so scholars in the United States have identified the emergence of a new distinct stage of life as adolescence has become protracted and most young people of recent generations take longer to achieve economic and psychological autonomy than they did a half century ago This new life stage in between adolescence and adulthood when young people are in a semiautonomous state has come to be known as early adulthood Main characteristics of this new life stage include a later entry into the work force a longer period of time living in the natal home and a delayed age at marriage and childbearing These trends not only have profound implications for young adults well being and intergenerational relationships but also challenge social institutions such as family schools labor markets and many youth serving institutions

Transnational Labour Migration, Remittances and the Changing Family in Asia L. Hoang, B. Yeoh, 2015-05-13 The contributors investigate the inter relationships between migrant remittances and the family in Asia They argue that in the context of Asian transnational labour migration where remittances tend to become a primary currency of care the making or breaking of the family unit is mainly contingent on how individuals handle remittance processes The New Zealand

Family from 1840 D. Ian Pool, Arunachalam Dharmalingam, Janet Sceats, 2013-11-01 An authoritative demographic history of the New Zealand family from 1840 2005 this reference is a collection of statistics that interprets the changing role of the family and its members Using detailed research spanning 165 years the authors chart the move from the large family of the 19th century to the baby boom the increase in family diversity and the modern trend towards unsustainably small families This analysis of society helps trace changing attitudes and the structure of society by noting the reasons for and consequences of the demographic changes Aging, Economic Growth, and Old-age Security in Asia Donghyun

Park, Sang-Hyop Lee, Andrew Mason, 2012-01-01 Population aging is perhaps the single biggest economic and social obstacle confronting Asia s future The region wide demographic transition towards an older population is fundamentally reshaping the demographic landscape and is giving rise to two key socio economic challenges This timely book provides an in depth analysis of these challenges and presents concrete policy options for tackling them First the expert contributors argue Asia must find ways to sustain rapid economic growth in the face of less favorable demographics which implies slower growth of the workforce Second they contend Asia must find ways to deliver affordable adequate and sustainable old age economic security for its growing elderly population Underpinned by rigorous analysis a wide range of concrete policy options for sustaining economic growth while delivering economic security for the elderly are then presented These include Asia wide policy options relevant to the entire region such as building up strong national pension systems whilst other policy options are more relevant to sub groups of countries This stimulating and informative book will be of great interest to academics students and researchers with an interest in Asian studies economics generally and more specifically public sector economics

envelope of technical administrative and legal capabilities Swanson and Walashek propose a re vamped US census based neither on the current system self enumeration nor its predecessor door to door canvassing Instead they propose that it be built on a combination of four elements 1 administrative records 2 the continuously updated Master Address File 3 survey data and 4 modeling and imputation techniques They use Census Enhanced Master Address File CEMAF as a descriptive term for their proposal which is based on four principles and includes a proposal for an independent Census Bureau They argue that evidence suggests that the methods used to conduct traditional census counts may be at the end of their useful working lives as evidenced by increasing costs and declining response rates Some of their ideas will seem farfetched However Swanson and Walashek believe this is the time to discuss radical proposals as governments re examine the utility of traditional census counts and consider reductions as is the case in Canada and England This SpringerBriefs should be on the reading list of staff in statistical agencies grappling with rising costs and declining response rates as well as census stakeholders concerned about costs accuracy and census utility

Fertility and Public Policy Noriyuki Takayama, Martin Werding, 2010-12-17 Experts discuss the appropriateness and effectiveness using public policy to influence fertility decisions In 2050 world population growth is predicted to come almost to a halt Shortly thereafter it may well start to shrink A major reason behind this shift is the fertility decline that has taken place in many developed countries In this book experts discuss the appropriateness and effectiveness of using public policy to influence fertility decisions Contributors discuss the general feasibility of public interventions in the area of fertility analyze fertility patterns and policy design in such countries as Japan South Korea China Sweden and France and offer theoretical analyses of parental fertility choices that provide an overview of a broad array of child related policy instruments in a number of OECD and EU countries The chapters show that it is difficult to gauge the effectiveness of such policy interventions as child care subsidies support for women s labor force participation and tax incentives Data are often incomplete causal relations unproved and the role of social norms and culture difficult to account for Investigating reasons for the decline in fertility more closely will require further study This volume offers the latest work on this increasingly important subject
