

unique and numberless powers, multifarious effects (the universe of multiple objects) evolve from Brahman, just as from milk (evolves yogurt, butter, etc.).<sup>34</sup>

In these two passages, as well as in many others,<sup>35</sup> Śaṅkarācārya uses the term śakti as well as the concept, but leaves its role and metaphysical status ambiguous in relation to brahman.

In these references, however, Śaṅkarācārya is unwilling to accept śakti as an entirely independent reality, for he will then have to explain śakti's nature as well as its relationship to brahman. If he is to explain the existence of the empirical world, he cannot completely deny the existence of śakti, but if he is to maintain the integrity of his nondualistic model, he cannot accept it as an independent reality either. To overcome this dilemma, Śaṅkarācārya modifies the basic doctrine of causation—Satkāryavāda, the theory according to which an effect must exist in its cause prior to its manifestation. However, he modifies this theory by claiming that the effect is but an illusory appearance, having its cause in that which already exists. Thus, he still adheres to the theory of Satkāryavāda, although not in the sense of Pariṇāmavāda as held by Sāṅkhya, according to which the actual effect comes from the preexisting actual cause, but rather in the sense of Vivartavāda, the theory of illusory effect appearing from a real cause.<sup>36</sup>

Furthermore, without giving a concrete definition, Śaṅkarācārya uses the term śakti interchangeably with māyāśakti, avidyā, and occasionally even prakṛti. In expounding his main thesis, Brahmādvaitavāda, he devotes more space to discussions of the unreal nature of śakti, māyāśakti, and other synonymous terms than he does to discussions about brahman,<sup>37</sup> a fact which leads adherents of other schools to refer to him as a Māyāvādin rather than a Brahmavādin.

Shakti and Shakta Sir John George Woodroffe, 1929 Occult Roots of Religious Studies Yves Mühlematter, Helmut Zander, 2021-06-08 The historiographers of religious studies have written the history of this discipline primarily as a rationalization of ideological most prominently theological and phenomenological ideas first through the establishment of comparative philological and sociological methods and secondly through the demand for intentional neutrality This interpretation caused important roots in occult esoteric traditions to be repressed This process of purification Latour is not to be equated with the origin of the academic studies De facto the elimination of idealistic theories took time and only happened later One example concerning the early entanglement is Tibetology where many researchers and respected chair holders were influenced by theosophical ideas or were even members of the Theosophical Society Similarly the emergence of comparatistics cannot be understood without taking into account perennialist ideas of esoteric provenance which hold that all religions have a common origin In this perspective it is not only the history of religious studies which must be revisited but also the partial shaping of religious studies by these traditions insofar as it saw itself as a counter model to occult ideas
