Political Sociology and the People's Health Jason Beckfield, 2018-08-10 In a stirring new synthesis Political Sociology and the People's Health advances the debate over social inequalities in health by offering a new set of provocative hypotheses around how health is distributed in and across populations. It joins political sociology's macroscopic insights into social policy, labor markets, and the racialized and gendered state with social epidemiology's conceptualizations and measurements of populations' etiologic periods and distributions. The result is a major leap forward in how we understand the relationships between institutions and inequalities and essential reading for those in public health, sociology, and beyond.

The Broken Voice Robert Eaglestone, 2017-05-26 Which writer today is not a writer of the Holocaust? asked the late Imre Kertész, Hungarian survivor and novelist, in his Nobel acceptance speech: one does not have to choose the Holocaust as one's subject to detect the broken voice that has dominated modern European art for decades. Robert Eaglestone attends to this broken voice in literature in order to explore the meaning of the Holocaust in the contemporary world, arguing again following Kertész that the Holocaust will remain through culture, which is really the vessel of memory. Drawing on the thought of Hannah Arendt, Eaglestone identifies and develops five concepts: the public secret, evil, stasis, disorientation, and kitsch, in a range of texts by significant writers including Kazuo Ishiguro, Jonathan Littell, Imre Kertész, W.G. Sebald, and Joseph Conrad, as well as in work by victims and perpetrators of the Holocaust and of atrocities in Africa. He explores the interweaving of complicity, responsibility, temporality, and the often problematic powers of narrative, which make up some part of the legacy of the Holocaust.

Working as Indigenous Archaeologists George Nicholas, Joe Watkins, 2024-09-30 Working as Indigenous Archaeologists explores the often contentious relationship between Indigenous and other formerly colonized peoples and Archaeology through their own voices. Over the past 35 plus years, the once novel field of Indigenous Archaeology has become a relatively familiar part of the archaeological landscape. It has been celebrated, criticized, and analyzed as to its practical and theoretical applications and its political nature. No less important are the life stories of its Indigenous practitioners. What has brought some of them to become practicing archaeologists or heritage managers? What challenges have they faced from both inside and outside their communities? And why haven't more pursued Archaeology as a vocation or avocation? This volume is a collection of 60 autobiographical chapters by Indigenous archaeologists and heritage specialists from around the world, some community-based, some academic, some in other realms who are working to connect past and present in meaningful and especially personal ways. As Archaeology continues to evolve, there remain strong tensions between an objective, science-oriented, evidentiary-based approach to knowing the past and a more subjective, relational, humanistic approach informed by local values, traditional knowledge, and holistic perspective. While there are no maps for these new territories, hearing directly from those Indigenous individuals who have pursued Archaeology reveals the pathways taken. Those stories will provide inspiration and confidence for those curious about what lies ahead. This is an important volume for anyone interested in the present state and future of the archaeological discipline.
