The Therapy Industry Paul Moloney, 2013-06-07 Across the world anxiety stress and depression are on the increase a trend which looks set to continue as austerity measures bite The official response tells people that unhappiness is just a personal problem rather than a social one Written by a practising psychologist with nearly thirty years experience in the fields of mental health and learning disabilities The Therapy Industry offers a concise accessible and critical overview of the world of psychological practice in Britain and the USA Paul Moloney argues that much therapy is geared towards compliance and acceptance of the status quo rather than attempting to facilitate social change The Therapy Industry fundamentally challenges our conceptions of happiness and wellbeing Moloney argues that therapeutic and applied psychology have little basis in science that their benefits are highly exaggerated and they prosper because they serve the interests of power      General Radiography Christopher M. Olson, 2016-03-09

Once a synonym for death cancer is now a prognosis of multiple probabilities and produces a world of uncertainty for carers Drawing on rich in depth interview data and employing interactionist theories Towards a Sociology of Cancer Caregiving explores carers lived experiences paying close attention to the ways in which spouse carers manage the ambiguity that pervades their orientations to the future their responsibilities and their emotions A detailed exploration of the temporal and emotional journeys of spouse carers of cancer patients this volume raises and responds to new questions about how to conceptualise informal caregiving offering a fresh theorisation of the uncertainty that now characterises cancer As such it will appeal to scholars of the sociologies of emotion time and identity and all those interested in the question of how to support informal carers
