Mixed Race Identities in Asia and the Pacific Zarine L. Rocha, 2015-10-08 Mixed race is becoming an important area for research and there is a growing body of work in the North American and British contexts However understandings and experiences of mixed race across different countries and regions are not often explored in significant depth New Zealand and

Singapore provide important contexts for investigation as two multicultural yet structurally divergent societies Within these two countries mixed race describes a particularly interesting label for individuals of mixed Chinese and European parentage This book explores the concept of mixed race for people of mixed Chinese and European descent looking at how being Chinese and or European can mean many different things in different contexts By looking at different communities in Singapore and New Zealand it investigates how individuals of mixed heritage fit into or are excluded from these communities Increasingly individuals of mixed ancestry are opting to identify outside of traditionally defined racial categories posing a challenge to systems of racial classification and to sociological understandings of race As case studies Singapore and New Zealand provide key examples of the complex relationship between state categorization and individual identities The book explores the divergences between identity and classification and the ways in which identity labels affect experiences of mixed race in everyday life Personal stories reveal the creative and flexible ways in which people cross boundaries and the everyday negotiations between classification heritage experience and nation in defining identity The study is based on qualitative research including in depth interviews with people of mixed heritage in both countries Filling an important gap in the literature by using an Asia Pacific dimension this study of race and ethnicity will appeal to students and scholars of mixed race studies ethnicity Chinese diaspora and cultural anthropology

Being Maori in the City Natacha Gagné,2013-01-21 Indigenous peoples around the world have been involved in struggles for decolonization self determination and recognition of their rights and the M ori of Aotearoa New Zealand are no exception Now that nearly 85% of the M ori population have their main place of residence in urban centres cities have become important sites of affirmation and struggle Grounded in an ethnography of everyday life in the city of Auckland Being Maori in the City is an investigation of what being M ori means today One of the first ethnographic studies of M ori urbanization since the 1970s this book is based on almost two years of fieldwork living with M ori families and more than 250 hours of interviews In contrast with studies that have focused on indigenous elites and official groups and organizations Being M ori in the City shines a light on the lives of ordinary individuals and families Using this approach Natacha Gagn adroitly underlines how indigenous ways of being are maintained and even strengthened through change and openness to the larger society New Zealand Books in Print 1998

Bowker,1998-02 More than 20 000 titles from New Zealand book trade associations literary awards agents booksellers libraries others From D W Thorpe Paradise Reforged James Belich,2002-02-28 Paradise Reforged picks up where Making Peoples left off taking the story of the New Zealanders from the 1880s to the end of the twentieth century It begins with the search for Better Britain and ends by analyzing the modern Maori resurgence the new Pakeha consciousness and the implications of a reinterpreted past for New Zealand s future Along the way the book deals with subjects ranging from sport and sex to childhood and popular culture Critics hailed Making Peoples as brilliant and the most ambitious book yet written on New Zealand s past Paradise Reforged its successor adopts a similarly incisive original sweep across the New Zealand historical landscape in confronting the myths of the past That some of its themes are uncomfortably close to the present makes the result all the more fascinating The New Zealand Journal of History ,1995
