Sahara A Natural History:

Sahara Marq De Villiers, Sheila Hirtle, 2004-03-23 In a book that is beautifully written and full of surprises Marq de Villiers and Sheila Hirtle describe the Sahara desert in all its remarkable complexity The authors revelations reinforce some common assumptions about the Great Emptiness but others are challenged There s water in the Sahara massive aquifers sufficient to irrigate farmlands for decades Just fifteen per cent of the Sahara is covered by sand much of the rest is mountainous Sand dunes move but they don t drift so much as hop skip dance and swirl The desert appears barren but teems with life lizards and snakes jerboas and foxes scorpions and endless swarms of bugs make their living in this harsh region So do ancient and nomadic peoples Berbers Chaambra Moors Bedouin Tuareg Tubu There has been commerce in the Sahara for hundreds of years Salt gold and slaves are mined harvested and traded there still The authors explore the majesty and mystery of this great African enigma in a journey that is enriched both by historical insight and practical experience

Sahara Marq de Villiers, Sheila Hirtle, 2002-09-01 In the parched and seemingly lifeless heart of the Sahara desert earthworms find enough moisture to survive Four major mountain ranges interrupt the flow of dunes and gravel plains and at certain times waterfalls cascade from their peaks Even the sand amazes massive dunes can appear almost overnight and be gone just as quickly We think we know the Sahara the largest and most austere desert on Earth yet it is full of surprises as Marq de Villiers reveals in his brilliant and evocative biography of the land and its people If you traveled across the United States from Boston to San Diego you still wouldn t have crossed the Sahara writes de Villiers painting a vivid picture of this most extraordinary place He charts the course of Atlantic hurricanes many of which are born in the Tibesti Mountains of northern Chad and offers a fascinating disquisition on the physics of windblown sand and the formation of dunes He chronicles the formation of the massive aquifers that lie beneath the desert some filled with water that pre dates the appearance of modern man on Earth He marvels at the jagged mountains and at ancient cave paintings deep in the desert which reveal that the Sahara was a verdant grassland 10 000 years ago a cycle that has been repeated several times Woven through de Villiers's story is a chronicle of the desert's nations and people the Berbers and Arabs of the north its black African south whose ancestors peopled the greatest empires of Old Africa and the extraordinary nomads the Moors the Tuareg the famous blue men and the Tubu who call the desert home today Illuminated by the eloquent written testimonies of past travelers Sahara is a glittering geographic tour conveying the majesty mystery and abundance of life in what the outside world thinks of as the Great Emptiness Biological Problems in Water Pollution Clarence Matthew Tarzwell, 1965
