Saharan Boy:

Young People's Daily Mobilities in Sub-Saharan Africa Gina Porter, Kate Hampshire, Albert Abane, Alister Munthali, Elsbeth Robson, Mac Mashiri, 2016-11-26 This book explores the daily mobilities and immobilities of children and young people in sub-Saharan Africa. The authors draw on findings from rural and urban field research extending over many years culminating in a 24 site study across three African countries: Ghana, Malawi and South Africa. Wider reflections on gender, relationality, the politics of mobility and field methodology frame the study. By bringing together diverse strands of a complex daily mobilities picture from journeys for education, work, play, leisure and health to associated experiences of different transport modes, road safety and the virtual mobility now afforded by mobile phones, the book helps fill a knowledge gap with crucial significance for development policy and practice.

Sahara Unveiled William Langewiesche, 2011-04-20 It is as vast as the United States and so arid that most bacteria cannot survive there. Its loneliness is so extreme it is said that migratory birds will land beside travelers just for the company. William Langewiesche came to the Sahara to see it as its inhabitants do, riding its public transport, braving its natural and human dangers, depending on its sparse sustenance and suspect hospitality. From his journey which took him across the desert's hyperarid core from Algiers to Dakar, he has crafted a contemporary classic of travel writing. In a narrative studded with gemlike discourses on subjects that range from the physics of sand dunes to the history of the Tuareg nomads, Langewiesche introduces us to the Sahara's merchants, smugglers, fixers and expatriates. Eloquent and precise, Sahara Unveiled blends history and reportage, anthropology and anecdote into an unforgettable portrait of the world's most romanticized yet most forbidding desert.

African Dept.,2020-04-17 This Selected Issues paper on Sierra Leone shows that boosting education and its quality for all children yields substantial macroeconomic gains While investments in the sector will take time to yield results the potential gains provide ample motivation for sustained multi pronged policy interventions along the lines highlighted in the following paragraphs Equalizing access to education emerges as a critical goal for prosperity that is shared fairly across the population Attaining free secondary education for all is a critical long run objective With limited fiscal space and vast challenges in the sector evidence based prioritizing sequencing and targeting of policies is critical Careful monitoring of education spending and its impacts will help reassess programs and priorities going forward Enhancing the governance of the sector to ensure that spending is well aligned with needs in the various levels is also important Tackling the education challenge will require coordinated work to overcome hurdles in several sectors Several factors currently within and beyond the education sector constrain efforts that could effectively reap the economic benefits from education The results indicate the macroeconomic benefits of education could be substantial in the order of up to 40 percent of gross domestic product in the long run Mathematics Teaching and Professional Learning in sub-Saharan Africa Kakoma Luneta,2021-12-09 The book represents a crop of wide ranging research conducted by renowned scholars in sub-Saharan Africa revolving around mathematics teaching and professional development programs for mathematics teachers The research based proposals and actual how to conduct professional development initiatives that enhance effective mathematics instruction are rooted in teacher input and informed by learners errors and misconceptions The book provides a comprehensive snapshot on mathematics teaching learning and effective professional development programmes for mathematics teachers in sub-Saharan Africa It is the only research output that advances and disseminates issues of mathematics education and research in the region with input from South Africa Kenya Rwanda Uganda Malawi Namibia Lesotho Ethiopia and Zimbabwe International Handbook of Comparative Education Robert Cowen,Andreas M. Kazamias,2009-08-22 A big project like this Handbook means that you incur debts and not only to your authors and your publisher As editors we along with our colleague Elaine Unterhalter who edited the section on postcolonialism would like to thank most warmly those authors who delivered on time and who did not fuss but just got on and did a rate job We would also like to thank all authors who did deliver which was almost everyone we asked We know that some of our authors worked in very difficult private circumstances as they were finishing their chapters and we hope the publication of the Volumes will later be for them a happy reminder of difficulties and disasters overcome The only sad theme is that some very close colleagues with whom we were working and for whom we had the greatest respect and liking became very ill and died while the volumes were being prepared We decided to ask for copyright permissions to publish something of theirs These permissions were graciously given by two major journals and with the agreement also of our publishers Springer Rolland Paulston and Terry McLaughlin have examples of their writing in this Handbook

Intransitive Predication Leon Stassen, 2003 This book investigates cross linguistic variation in one of the core domains of all natural languages Leon Stassen views this domain as a cognitive space the topography of which is the same for all languages It is assumed to consist of four subdomains which correspond to a four way distinction between the semantic classes of event predicates property predicates class predicates and locational predicates The book offers a typology of the structural manifestations of this domain in terms of the nature and number of the formal strategies used in its encoding The author discusses a number of abstract principles which can be employed in explaining the cross linguistic variation embodied by the typology In the final chapter he brings together the research results in a universally applicable model which can be read as a flow chart for the encoding of intransitive predications in different language types
