Poverty and Development Planning in India K.L. Datta, 2014-01-01 This book covers a wide range of issues related to poverty and inequality in the context of development planning in India It presents an account of the planning and development strategy at the backdrop of the measures to effect poverty reduction It describes India's planning process and analyses the mathematical models of growth and investment which are at the back of Plan formulation and provides an account of the measures of poverty reduction The centrality of this analysis is the transition from growth measures pursued until the 1970s to a mix of growth and redistribution since the 1980s and then to inclusive growth This book covers four core areas First the treatise on mathematical models to chart out a growth path the manner and method of using poverty as a parameter in the consistency type growth models and the analytical details of the changes in the planning strategy during the period of economic reforms contained here give seminal insights into the role of planning in poverty reduction Second it comments on the methodology of the measurement of poverty comprehensively summarising the debates surrounding it Third the identification of poor and accrual to their income through direct attack on poverty has been chronicled with a critique's eye Here a clinical examination of the specific strategies and their outcomes with a quantitative analysis of the general growth process and the income redistributive anti poverty programmes is also done Fourth it undertakes a disaggregated quantification of poverty at the regional level in rural and urban areas and by social and occupation groups These reflect the stratified nature of Indian society and are integral to the formulation of meaningful plan for poverty reduction The issues addressed here are essential to understand poverty and inequality in India's rapidly growing economy Many of them are contentious and have been dealt with academic rigour so as to enable a fair assessment

Decentralized Planning and Participatory Rural Development Purnendu Sekhar Das, 2005 Contributed articles presented at two seminars on regional planning and participatory rural development predominantly on West Bengal held at Dept of Economics with Rural Development Vidyasagar University

Decentralisation and Spatial Rural Development Planning in Cameroon Emmanuel Neba Ndenecho, 2011 Despite rapid urbanisation Africa remains predominantly rural This calls for decentralisation beyond the dominant concern by states and government with urban spaces Rural areas rural development and the future of rural settlements need to be understood and addressed in the context of the ongoing democratisation trends and the emergence and development of civil society States have tended to tame rather than serve civil society in Africa By establishing a single cultural reference and imposing a centralised state African governments have exacerbated the fragmentation of civil society. However, political pluralism has slowly been gaining ground since the 1990s. This book explores the scope for implementing decentralisation programmes that focus on citizens in rural areas. For the purpose of decentralisation, civic participation in local politics and user participation in development programmes must be seen as two sides of the coin. The book focuses on spatial planning, a process concerned with spatial organisation in an integrative manner and incorporates the design, establishment and implementation of a desired spatial structural organisation of land. This is especially relevant in a context where the formulation of guidelines for spatial development at the overall level of a state is inadequate.

Rural Development Planning Design and Method Shri Niwas Mishra, 1984. In the Indian context.

Development Planning and Poverty Reduction D. Potts, P. Ryan, A. Toner, 2003-06-10. The stated aim of much development assistance is the reduction of poverty. This book examines how development interventions might be more effectively targeted to achieve this aim. Part One provides an overview of planning for poverty reduction and evidence on the extent and causes of poverty. Part Two examines participatory approaches to development planning. Part Three assesses macro economic strategies and programmes for poverty reduction. Part Four concludes with a microeconomic analysis of the distribution of benefits from investment projects.

Resources, Planning and Environmental Management in a Changing Caribbean David Barker, Duncan F. M. McGregor, 2003. This volume reports on contemporary research by geographers and others into resource management and planning issues in the Caribbean region. The common theme is the search for developmental strategies that focus on social and economic needs without further deterioration of the resource base.

Public Participation In Development Planning And Management Jean-claude Garcia-zamor, 2019-09-16. This book examines the position held by most development administrators that citizen participation in the planning and management of development projects is crucial to their lasting success. The contributors view inadequate participation as part of the larger problem of ineffective management policies and planning. They show that development objectives
