Principles Of Learning From Laboratory To Field:

Principles of Learning Douglas J. Navarick, 1979 Principles of Learning and Memory Robert G. Crowder, 2014-11-20 In this landmark volume from 1976 Robert Crowder presents an organized review of the concepts that guide the study of learning and memory The basic organization of the book is theoretical rather than historical or methodological and there are four broad sections The first is on coding in memory and the relations between memory and vision audition and speech The second section focuses on short term memory. The third is loosely organized around the topic of learning The final section includes chapters that focus on the process of retrieval with special attention to recognition and to serial organization Crowder presumes no prior knowledge of the subject matter on the part of the reader technical terms are kept to a minimum and he makes every effort to introduce them carefully when they first occur It is suitable for advanced undergraduate and graduate courses Technical Report Human Resources Research Organization, 1970 Training Effectiveness in Work Organizations J. Kevin Ford, 2014-01-14 This compelling volume presents the work of innovative researchers dealing with current issues in training and training effectiveness in work organizations Each chapter provides an integrative summary of a research area with the goal of developing a specific research agenda that will not only stimulate thinking in the training field but also direct future research By concentrating on new ideas and critical methodological and measurement issues rather than summarizing existing literature the volume offers definitive suggestions for advancing the effectiveness of the training field Its chapters focus on emerging issues in training that have important implications for improving both training design and efficacy They discuss various levels of analysis intra individual inter individual team and organizational issues and the factors relevant to achieving a better understanding of training effectiveness from these different perspectives.
