The Unforgotten Women of the Islamic State explores the governance of the Islamic State (IS) terrorist organization through the lives and words of local Iraqi, Syrian, and Kurdish women. While the roles and activities of foreign, predominantly Western, pro-IS women have garnered significant attention, the experiences and insights of local civilian populations have been largely overlooked. Drawing on the testimonies of 63 local Sunni Muslim and Yazidi women, Gina Vale exposes the group's intra-gender stratified system of governance. Eligibility for the group's protection, security, citizenship, and entrance into the semi-public sphere were not universal but required convergence with the gender norms of IS through permanent erasure or at least temporary disguise of certain markers of difference. In some cases, this was directed by a pre-meditated divide and conquer strategy, while in others, it manifested as unregulated violence at the hands of individual group members, including women. The structure follows the trajectory of IS's increasing control over its citizens and captive populations, its militarization of society, imposition of law and order, provision of goods and services, and intervention in civilians' private lives. Analysis of diverse first-hand accounts and the group's documentation reveals that the presence, exclusion, and victimization of local civilian women were necessary to the functioning and legitimation of IS's caliphate project and the supremacy of affiliated men and women. As a fledgling proto-state, IS needed local Iraqi, Syrian, and Kurdish women. Though far from represented or protected, they were by no means forgotten. Law and Religion in the Liberal State Md Jahid Hossain Bhuiyan, Darryn Jensen, 2020-05-28. The relationship between law and religion is evident throughout history. They have never been completely independent from each other. There is no doubt that religion has played an important role in providing the underlying values of modern laws in setting the terms of the relationship between the individual and the state and in demanding a space for the variety of intermediate institutions which stand between individuals and the state. However, the relationships between law and religion and the state and religious institutions differ significantly from one modern state to another. There is not one liberalism but many. This work brings together reflections upon the relationship between religion and the law from the perspectives of different sub-traditions within the broader liberal project and in light of some contemporary problems in the accommodation of religious and secular authority. From Truth and truth Francis Etheredge, 2016-01-14 We begin philosophising cf Fides et Ratio 3 30 without realising that we are philosophers but in time we discover our own identity as philosophers and at the same time come to critically examine it What therefore is the interrelationship between reason and sense indeed is not sense subtly sensitive through reason Questions then arise out of our life our observations and from what we learn But it is not only about being ready well trained or perfect in our reasoning rather it is about taking up the impulse and the task of seeking the truth On the one hand then we can question everything and end up with nothing but on the other hand there are many points of departure experience maxims and the wisdom which comes through many advisers Prov 15 22 Ideas abound about what might be the case but a philosophical investigation is also about coming into the presence of being Many people have gone before and go with us and will come after us and therefore this book marks a contribution to understanding both the activity of philosophising and the conversation about what is cf Fides et Ratio 44 We discover that to exist is to search through the apparent contradictions in our experience and to find eventually that there are both good foundations and buildings begun and also great unanswered or unsatisfactorily answered questions There is an ongoing work too to establish the mystery of the person implicated in human action Therefore there is both the inveterate call of the subject to be investigated and at the same time the ever present need of the grace of perseverance to pursue it This book is also about the slow discovery of the beautiful but inadequate nature of natural truth The wonder of natural truth is that it exists like the literal sense a kind of foundational reasoning however just as Revelation perfects natural truth so the human person is a living expression of the whole literal and spiritual sense of created being Hence the title of this volume Faithful Reason makes explicit a witness to what is beyond itself
