Seeking a Richer Harvest Tina Thurston, Christopher T Fisher, 2006-11-25 Subsistence intensification innovation and change have long figured prominently in explanations for the development of social complexity among foragers and horticulturalists and the rise of chiefly societies and archaic states yet there is considerable debate over the actual mechanisms that promote these processes Traditional approaches to the intensification question emphasize population pressure climate change bureaucratic management or even land degradation as prerequisites for the onset of new or changing strategies or the construction and maintenance of agricultural landscapes Most often these factors are modeled as external forces outside the realm of human decision making but recent archaeological research presents an alternative to this suggesting that subsistence intensification is the result of human driven strategies for power prestige and status stemming from internal conditions within a group When responding to environmental adversity human groups were less frequently the victims as they have been repeatedly portrayed Instead human groups were often vigorous actors responding with resilience ingenuity and planning to flourish or survive within dynamic and sometimes unpredictable social and natural milieux

in which people derive their beliefs not from faith or reason or faith and reason but from emotion which becomes the central source of truth And so many have embraced a fierce moral absolutism on the basis of beliefs that are the products of nothing more than subjective inclinations and experiences This collection of essays challenges the Age of Feeling by appealing to reason in the pursuit of sound moral understanding on crucial and contentious topics of human dignity the definition of marriage philosophy of law constitutional law the nature of civil liberties free markets and others Robert George has taught generations of students at Princeton University and Harvard Law School and he has long proclaimed that a teacher's sacred mission is to form his students to be determined truth seekers and courageous truth speakers In Seeking Truth and Speaking Truth he shows us how it is done
