Prisoners Of Santo Tomas:

Prisoners Of Santo Tomas Celia Lucas,1990-12-31 There have been countless books about the sub human brutality of the Japanese to their prisoners of war nearly all of which have been written by Soldiers There have been few if any books which describe what it is like for a woman and her teenage daughter to find themselves suddenly swept in the holocaust of the war in the Pacific For this reason the story if Isla Corfield is of exceptional interest Captured by the Japanese when the evacuee ship from Shanghai was diverted to the Philippines Mrs Corfield and her daughter Gill found themselves interned with 3 500 other men women and children at Santo Tomas Manila s erstwhile University The extraordinary way of life which evolved within the camp becomes gradually understandable as each person s character is related to the situation in which they find themselves and gradually as the entrepreneurs get into their stride there emerge in microcosm all the amenities of life outside the wire from restaurants to brothels In 1944 the Corfields are moved to Los Baños a new camp in the country where conditions are appalling and many die of starvation But at last rescue comes at the hands of the U S 11th Airborne Division in the form of a combined air sea land rescue operation of split second efficiency and the 2000 survivors are literally snatched from the jaws of death This is the first time that a detailed account of this remarkable operation has been published Celia Lucas has used the 36 exercise books which Isla Corfield risked death to keep to tell this very remarkable story of a mother and daughter who managed to preserve their sanity their standards and their sense of humour when the world around them suddenly went mad Prisoners of Santo Tomas Celia Lucas,1997 Prisoners of Santo Tomas C.

American Prisoners Of Japan: Did Rank Have Its Privilege? Major Michael A. (Buffone) Zarate, 2014-08-15 This thesis examines the story of American POWs held by the Japanese in WWII to see if there were significant differences in treatment based on rank It examines how the Japanese treated the prisoners according to international law and also distinctions made by the officers themselves simply because of higher rank The thesis begins by discussing the historical framework for POW rank distinctions by looking at past wars and the development of rank distinctions in international rules It then covers the American WWII POW experience in the Far East from Bataan and Corregidor to the war's end Special emphasis is placed on distinctions made in food housing pay medical care camp administration work requirements escape opportunities transportation leadership problems and overall death rates The study concludes that there were significant differences in treatment based on rank These differences caused extremely high enlisted death rates during the first year of captivity The officers fared worse as a group however because the Japanese held them in the Philippines until late 1944 because international rules prevented the Japanese from using officers in Japan s labor camps During shipment to Japan many officers died when the unmarked transport ships were sunk by advancing American forces Prisoners of the Empire Sarah Kovner,2020-09-15 Many Allied POWs in the Pacific theater of World War II suffered terribly But abuse wasn t a matter of Japanese policy as is commonly assumed Sarah Kovner shows poorly trained guards and rogue commanders inflicted the most horrific damage Camps close to centers of imperial power tended to be less violent and many POWs died from friendly fire Prison in Peru Lucia Bracco Bruce,2021-11-17 This book expands the field of prison research by drawing on six months of unique ethnographic research in Santa Monica prison the largest women s prison in Lima Peru Using feminist and decolonial perspectives it explores power and the governance system and its implications on how the prison operates and the lived experiences of women prisoners and their interpersonal relationships It reflects on the intersection of prison imprisonment and gender from a Global South perspective and includes methodological reflections on how to research prisons in the Global South holistically It fills a gap and engages with debates on governmentality and women s agency within the penal context Manila Diary, 1941-1945 Jeanette West Rowan,2000
