Indigenous Aesthetics Steven Leuthold, 2010-07-05 What happens when a Native or indigenous person turns a video camera on his or her own culture Are the resulting images different from what a Westernized filmmaker would create and if so in what ways How does the use of a non Native art making medium specifically video or film affect the aesthetics of the Native culture These are some of the questions that underlie this rich study of Native American aesthetics art media and identity Steven Leuthold opens with a theoretically informed discussion of the core concepts of aesthetics and indigenous culture and then turns to detailed examination of the work of American Indian documentary filmmakers including George Burdeau and Victor Masayesva Jr. He shows how Native filmmaking incorporates traditional concepts such as the connection to place to the sacred and to the cycles of nature. While these concepts now find expression through Westernized media they also maintain continuity with earlier aesthetic productions. In this way Native filmmaking serves to create and preserve a sense of identity for indigenous people. Art in America Frank Jewett Mather, Frederic Fairchild Sherman, 1994-07

American Indian Art Magazine, 1988      American Art Galleries Les Krantz, 1985      Navajo Times, 1964      San Diego Home/garden, 1988      American Empire and the Fourth World Anthony J. Hall, 2003-11-10. In The American Empire and the Fourth World Anthony Hall presents a sweeping analysis of encounters between indigenous people and the European empires, national governments and global corporations on the moving frontiers of globalization since Columbus discovered America. How should we respond to the emergence of the United States as the military, commercial and cultural centre of a global empire? How can we elaborate a global rule of law based on equality and democracy when the world's most powerful polity acknowledges no higher authority in the international arena than its own domestic priorities? For Hall the answer lies in the concept of the Fourth World: an inclusive intellectual tent covering a wide range of movements whose leaders seek to implement alternative views of globalization. Larger than any earlier political movement the Fourth World embraces basic principles that include the inherent rights of self-determination and a more just approach to the crafting and enforcement of international law.
