Bulka, 2003 This volume looks at the unique phenomenon of what the author calls Modern Folk Judaism the way that many Jews have chosen to express their Judaism in the context of Modern society The author explores some of the strange contradictory and often funny results that have derived from this choice and how these results have impacted on Jewish continuity The central thesis of this book is that a little bit of Judaism far from fending off the prospect of intermarriage may actually encourage it The author contends that in some way we all make choices about what we think is more and less important and that therefore to some extent we are all folk Jews The book concludes with some suggestions for how we can build upon the strengths of Modern Folk Judaism to chart a more promising course for our collective future Jewish Marriage Reuven P. policy on decentralization for later in the reconstruction phase the book uncovers a distinct local government dimension to peace transitions A civic dimension to national conflicts that must be explained incipient or proto local authorities that emerge even during civil war in peace making after state collapse the fact that it is common for peace agreements and constitutions to include rules for local authority for local elections to be held as part of broader democratization and for laws to be enacted to establish local government as part of peace compacts The book develops the concept of local peace transition to explain the distinctive constitutive role of this local dimension in peace making and state formation This path breaking book will be of compelling interest to practitioners scholars and students of comparative constitutional studies international law peace building and state building
