Cianciolo, 2023-08-22 The perceived value of philosophy to medical education is increasing But beyond the occasional application of philosophical concepts what does it mean to be philosophical about medical education and to do philosophy to create new concepts and ways of thinking about what medical education is The complex and dynamic nature of academic medicine requires medical educators to reflect on their practices to question assumptions and to embrace the ambiguity of a world that cannot be captured by any one model or theory This volume explores philosophy as a practice in medical education We use persistent problems that vex medical educators as a starting point to do philosophy asking fundamental questions to probe them How are teaching and learning related How do we educate the value of personal experience relative to scientific evidence We also challenge the assumptions underlying these problems with alternatives What if teaching does not cause learning What if we cannot divide our inner and outer world We then explore ways forward If we cannot cause learning how do we reconceptualize the educational process How do we help physician trainees critically reflect on medical epistemology throughout their professional development Each chapter explores one theme in medical education e g education science inequality technology mortality from a philosophical perspective opening it up to fundamental re examination and inviting readers to continue exploration beyond the printed words This book is a step towards enabling medical educators to practice philosophy themselves at appropriate moments in their work In this way it aims to establish medical education as a mature field with its own philosophy The chapters in this book were originally published in the journal Teaching and Learning in Medicine Fostering Reflective Teaching Practice in Pre-Service Education Djoub, Zineb,2017-08-11 As with any industry the education sector often goes through frequent changes It is every educator s duty to keep up with these shifting requirements and alter their teaching style accordingly Fostering Reflective Teaching Practice in Pre Service Education is an essential reference source that provides a detailed analysis of the most efficient and effective ways for teachers to adapt to changes in their industry Featuring relevant topics such as reflective teaching methodology lifelong learning programs pioneer service learning and technology integration in education this book is ideal for current educators future teachers academicians students and researchers that would like insight into the best practices for keeping up with the demanding changes in the education field Reflective Practice in Education and Social Work Robyn Ewing,Fran Waugh,David L. Smith,2021-12-14 This book offers unique interdisciplinary insights into developing connections between reflective practice and employability particularly through the lenses of the education and social work professions It recognises the various meanings that can be applied to the notion of reflection and examines the challenges of using reflective practice in the workplace The chapters explore the tensions that arise from preparing professionals to be agents of change and concerned with social justice and equity Further the book provides much needed perspective on how diverse positions can be identified and leveraged and shared meanings negotiated in the creation of meaningful professional learning resources for early career teachers and social workers and across the career continuum Bringing together contributions from internationally renowned scholars Reflective Practice in Education and Social Work is essential reading for early career and experienced professionals in education and social work academics and practitioners seeking further professional development in reflective practice Understanding Medical Education Tim Swanwick,Kirsty Forrest,Bridget C.
