Philosophy of Mind Georg Wilhelm Friedrich Hegel, Michael Inwood, 2007 Philosophy of Mind is the third part of Hegel's encyclopedia of the philosophical sciences in which he summarises his philosophical system. It is one of the main pillars of his thought. Religion and the Mind George Richmond Grose, 2015-06-24 Excerpt from Religion and the Mind. This little book is the outgrowth of twenty years' contact with young people who want to have faith in God and to keep on their feet intellectually. They have both the will to believe and the unwillingness to quit thinking. Honest doubters are asking: Can religion and culture live together? The question is not chiefly academic or speculative. It is vital. Unless religion can be made intelligent and intellect can be made religious, either is barren. In these pages the writer seeks to express his ever deepening conviction that education and religion must unite in making an all-round man. The aim is to set forth the meaning of Christian education. These studies make a plea for fervent piety and fearless thinking. They also seek to impress it upon young people that mental culture is not merely a privilege, a luxury for those who feel they can afford it, but is a high moral duty. Winning can be an elusive thing. Anyone who has chased a dream can relate. What does it mean to win? If once a winner is one, always a winner. Does success in one area of life make one a winner? Who decides whether someone has actually won? At their core, people are driven to overcome any challenge they face, physical, mental, or spiritual. They want to win with their bodies, minds, and souls separately and collectively. Their desire is to be a winner in the game of life and beyond if there is such a thing. Competitions with the body and the mind are battles. Competition with the soul is war. The War. Ideally, everyone would win the battles and the war. However, it's okay to lose every battle and win the war. But it's not okay to win every battle and lose the war. Victories with the body and the mind are paper victories. Winning with the soul is the only victory that matters in the end. While no one knows what will happen when they die, an analysis of the world's top twenty-two religions/non-religions proves that Christianity gives us the best chance at winning the War.
