Committee on Staff-Training-Extramural Programs, 1972 Religion, Science, and Public Policy Frank T. Birtel, 1987 Religion and Psychology Sylvan D. Ambrose, 2006 This book is devoted to research on the interaction between two fields which have an enormous impact on most of mankind Science Education for Diversity Nasser Mansour, Rupert Wegerif, 2013-06-18 Reflecting the very latest theory on diversity issues in science education including new dialogic approaches this volume explores the subject from a range of perspectives and draws on studies from around the world The work discusses fundamental topics such as how we conceptualize diversity as well as examining the ways in which heterogeneous cultural constructs influence the teaching and learning of science in a range of contexts Including numerous strategies ready for adoption by interested teachers the book addresses the varied cultural factors that influence engagement with science education It seeks answers to the question of why increasing numbers of students fail to connect with science education in schools and looks at the more subtle impact that students individually constructed identities have on the teaching and learning of science Recognizing the diversity of its audience the book covers differing levels and science subjects and examines material from a range of viewpoints that include pedagogy curricula teacher education learning gender religion and ICT as well as those of in service and trainee teachers at all levels

Feminism in Action Jean F. O'Barr, 1994 Feminism in Action is Jean O Barr's firsthand account of two decades spent working to promote the cause of higher education for women through the establishment of women's studies programs. The book brings together revised versions of O Barr's most Science, Religion, the Humanities and Hope Anne Runehov, Michael Fuller, 2024-03-19 This book collects a multidisciplinary range of contributions focusing on the prolific and seminal work of Willem Drees in the fields of philosophy of religion, philosophy of the humanities and science, and theology. Trained in both theoretical physics and theology, philosophy of religion, Drees holds doctoral degrees in both theology and in philosophy and amongst other distinguished positions held professorships at the University of Leiden and at the University of Tilburg. Drees was also Editor in Chief of Zygon Journal of Religion Science between 2008 and 2018 and served as President of the European Society for the Study of Science and Theology ESSSAT between 2002 and 2008. In 2018 he was elected as member of the Royal Holland Society of Sciences and Humanities KHMW. This contributed volume builds on Drees' expansive and provocative scholarly contributions notably around the concept and meaning of naturalism and the humanities to the fields of science and religion as exemplified by his works Religion Science and Naturalism 1996 and What Are the Humanities For 2021. In a time where more and more young people across the globe are entering higher education such cross disciplinary explorations and re evaluations are vital to the field. Accordingly by approaching his work from a variety of disciplines this collection illuminates the broad reach of Drees' work and provides scholars from various fields with many new and rich opportunities/avenues for research.

Science Vs. Religion Elaine Howard Ecklund, 2010-05-06 That the longstanding antagonism between science and religion is irreconcilable has been taken for granted. And in the wake of recent controversies over teaching intelligent design and the ethics of stem cell research the divide seems as unbridgeable as ever. In Science vs Religion Elaine Howard Ecklund investigates this unexamined assumption in the first systematic study of what scientists actually think and feel about religion. In the course of her research Ecklund surveyed nearly 1 700 scientists and interviewed 275 of them. She finds that most of what we believe about the faith lives of elite scientists is wrong. Nearly 50 percent of them are religious. Many others are what she calls spiritual entrepreneurs seeking creative ways to work with the tensions between science and faith outside the constraints of traditional religion. The book centers around vivid portraits of 10 representative men and women working in the natural and social sciences at top American research universities. Ecklund's respondents run the gamut from Margaret a chemist who teaches a Sunday school class to Arik a physicist who chose not to believe in God well before he decided to become a scientist. Only a small minority are actively hostile to religion. Ecklund reveals how scientists, believers and skeptics alike are struggling to engage the increasing number of religious students in their classrooms and argues that many scientists are searching for boundary pioneers to cross the picket lines separating science and religion. With broad implications for education, science funding and the thorny ethical questions surrounding stem cell research, cloning and other cutting edge scientific endeavors Science vs Religion brings a welcome dose of reality to
