Writing East Iain Macleod Higgins, 2010-11-24 No work revealed more of the mysterious East to statesmen explorers readers and writers of the late Middle Ages than the Book of John Mandeville One of the most widely circulated documents of its day it first appeared in French between 1356 and 1371 and was soon translated into nine other European languages Ostensibly the account of one English knight's journeys through Africa and Asia it is rather a compilation of travel writings first shaped by an unknown redactor Writing East is a study of how Mandeville's Travels came to appear in its various versions explaining how it went through a series of transformations as it reached new audiences in order to serve as both a response to previous writings about the East and an important voice in the medieval conversation about the nature and limits of the world Higgins offers a palimpsestic reading of this multi-text that demonstrates not only how the original French author overwrote his precursors but also how subsequent translators molded the material to serve their own ideological agendas War, Culture and Society in Renaissance Venice John Rigby Hale, David Chambers, Cecil H. Clough, Michael Mallett, 1993-01-01 While the majority of these essays are about wars fought against Venice's enemies or on the building and defence of Venetian and other fortifications there are also essays on other aspects of Venetian life and art on Giorgione's earliest work on the career of a Venetian pope on the building of the Ca d'Oro and on the Diarii of Marino Sanuto Across

Paszek, 2001 This book originally published in 1969 discusses the development of the complex relationships between science and technology and warfare from the Renaissance to the 1960s The nature of warfare has always been largely determined by contemporary technology Instances of technological change undertaken for the sake of military advantage have also been relatively common in history The relationships between science and warfare however have been much more variable and ambiguous Science Technology and Warfare requires a fourth term to be complete Management because the primary military innovator never has been the scientist technologist or soldier but rather the administrative organizer of victory     Proceeding's of the Military History Symposium, USAF Academy United States.
