Approach the Throne Marc Y. Lane, 2013 This is the forgotten Matter of Europe a Song of Courtly Love and Betrayal Adventure and Misfortune sung by two Emperors a Pope a King a Duke and two Counts It is 1100 AD In the east of Europe battles are underway between Christians and Muslims between Latin and Greek speakers and between the Church and Crown King Baldwin of Jerusalem valiant knight and lusty bachelor has wrested a sacred talisman from the Eastern Empire the Palladium With it his kingdom and the civilisation it represents is in the ascendancy and all fall before his sword Yet he has a weakness love both for one woman his mother as well as his fellow man Will it be his undoing If it were up to Caesar Nicephoros Bryennius Panhypersebastos First Minister of the Roman Empire Baldwin would not be the only one to fall He schemes for the ancient crown of the Romans and nothing can stand in his way Nothing perhaps except his wife or himself

Four of Baldwin's knights too are struggling with their place in the world Though they have risen high in Baldwin's service their real love is questing after pilgrims Thus they seek to lighten Baldwin s load by offering him a service while embarking on a great quest of their own One that will lead them places that even they scarcely realise Lowest on the ranks of society below the common gaze is Nicephoros escaped slave Jacob He vies simply for freedom the purest desire Yet in seeking to use the Palladium to achieve his goals he stands to change the fate of all History of the Christian Church: A.D. 1-600, translated by Andrew Rutherfurd.
