Cary,2003-04-03 In this book Phillip Cary argues that Augustine invented the concept of the self as a private inner space a space into which one can enter and in which one can find God Although it has often been suggested that Augustine in some way inaugurated the Western tradition of inwardness this is the first study to pinpoint what was new about Augustine s philosophy of inwardness and situate it within a narrative of his intellectual development and his relationship to the Platonist tradition Augustine invents the inner self Cary argues in order to solve a particular conceptual problem Augustine is attracted to the Neoplatonist inward turn which located God within the soul yet remains loyal to the orthodox Catholic teaching that the soul is not divine He combines the two emphases by urging us to turn in then up to enter the inner world of the self before gazing at the divine Light above the human mind Cary situates Augustine s idea of the self historically in both the Platonist and the Christian traditions The concept of private inner self he shows is a development within the history of the Platonist concept of intelligibility or intellectual vision which establishes a kind of kinship between the human intellect and the divine things it sees Though not the only Platonist in the Christian tradition Augustine stands out for his devotion to this concept of intelligibility and his willingness to apply it even to God This leads him to downplay the doctrine that God is incomprehensible as he is convinced that it is natural for the mind s eye when cleansed of sin to see and understand God In describing Augustine s invention of the inner self Cary s fascinating book sheds new light on Augustine s life and thought and shows how Augustine s position developed into the more orthodox Augustine we know from his later writings AN

From Is to Ought: The Place of Normative Models in the Study of Human Thought Shira Elqayam, David E. Over, 2016-08-12 In the study of human thinking two main research questions can be asked Descriptive Q What is human thinking like Normative Q What ought human thinking be like For decades these two questions have dominated the field and the relationship between them

generated many a controversy Empirical normativist approaches regard the answers to these questions as positively correlated in essence human thinking is what it ought to be although what counts as the ought standard is moot In contemporary theories of reasoning and decision making this is often associated with a Panglossian framework an adaptationist approach which regards human thinking as a priori rational In contrast prescriptive normativism sees the answers to these two questions as negatively correlated Normative models are still relevant to human thought but human behaviour deviates from them quite markedly with the invited conclusion that humans are often irrational Prescriptive normativism often results in a Meliorist agenda which sees rationality as amenable to education Both empirical and prescriptive normativism can be contrasted with a descriptivist framework for psychology of human thinking Following Hume's strict divide between the is and the ought descriptivism regards the descriptive and normative research questions as uncorrelated or dissociated with only the former question suitable for psychological study of human behaviour This basic division carries over to the relation between normative ought rationality based on conforming to normative standards and instrumental rationality based on achieving one's goals Descriptivist approaches regard the two as dissociated whereas normativist approaches tend to see them as closely linked with normative arguments defining and justifying instrumental rationality This research topic brings together diverse contributions to the continuing debate Featuring contributions from leading researchers in the field the e book covers a wide range of subjects arranged by six sections The standard picture Normativist perspectives In defence of soft normativism Exploring normative models Descriptivist perspectives Evolutionary and ecological accounts Empirical reports With a total of some 24 articles from 55 authors this comprehensive treatment includes theoretical analyses meta theoretical critiques commentaries and a range of empirical reports The contents of the Research Topic should appeal to psychologists linguists philosophers and cognitive scientists with research interests in a wide range of domains from language through reasoning judgment and decision making and moral judgment to epistemology and theory of mind philosophical logic and meta ethics
