Major Trends in Formative Judaism: The three stages in the formation of Judaism Jacob Neusner, 1983 Major Trends in Formative Judaism: Category -formation, literature, and philosophy Jacob Neusner, 1983 The Transformation of Judaism Jacob Neusner, 2011-03-31

Jacob Neusner describes, analyzes and interprets the transformation of one system of the Israelite social order by a connected but autonomous successor system. He characterizes the successive systems, classifying the one as philosophical and the other as religious. He explains the categorical account of each and sets forth the outcome of a number of topical studies on the category formations of Rabbinic Judaism with special attention to the social order, politics, philosophy and economics. These systems emerged as 1) autonomous when viewed synchronically, 2) connected when seen diachronically, and 3) as a continuous construction when seen at the end of their formative age. In their successive stages of categorical autonomy, connection and finally continuity, the three distinct systems may be classified respectively as philosophical, religious and theological, each one taking over and revising the definitive categories of the former and framing its own fresh generative categories as well. The formative history of Judaism is the story of the presentations and re-presentations of categorical structures. In method, it is the exegesis of taxonomy and taxic systems. Now, after more than two decades, Neusner has decided to review the initial statement. Since the book summarizes ten years of work from 1980 to 1990 on the Rabbinic category formations of social science, politics, philosophy and economics in the setting of the law and theology of Rabbinic Judaism from the Mishnah through the Bavli (200-600 C.E.), it seemed well worth the effort to recapitulate the original work. The revised introduction explains the omission of theology in his category formation philosophy religion theology. Neusner's account of the Bavli produced the decade after this title was completed did not make possible the continuous description of the unfolding of the Rabbinic system. The pattern that appealed to Neusner from philosophy to religion to theology has not yet come to a satisfactory account. In the twenty years
