Uprisings in Eighteenth-Century Britain Monika Barget, 2023-10-19 This study examines how the British Empire of the 18th century contained revolution by integrating opposition agents as new spaces of power opened up Monika Barget convincingly argues that this process of constitutionalisation meant that groups from the aristocracy to religious communities from the army to the people at large were brought into the system in a way that balanced the obvious serious challenges that the Glorious Revolution the Jacobite Rebellion the American Revolution and Jacobin threats of the late 18th century posed to the Empire Barget highlights the lasting political and legal repercussions of this process The structure of the chapters each focussing on specific agents and conflict media also links the history of political agency and political institutions with an expanding European and even trans continental media market

A Pleasing Prospect Shani D'Cruze, 2008. Based on extensive primary source research, this historical account considers the changing identity of 18th century Colchester from the perspective of its middling sort, a section of society often attached to cultures of politeness and to the practices of consumption and production that helped shape economic change. Painstakingly reconstructing 18th century social networks along lines of family, kinship, gender, spatiality, religion and politics, this study examines the relationships between individual and family biographies while reflecting on provincial urban society and culture. The guide explores how Colchester capitalized on growth in agriculturally based industries such as brewing, milling and malting and its role as an east coast port and its participating in the urban renaissance and commodification of polite culture.

Discussing Chemistry and Steam Trevor Harvey Levere, Gerard L'Estrange Turner, Jan Golinski, Larry R. Stewart, 2002. This book contains an edition of the Minutes of the Coffee House Philosophical Society 1780-1787 as transcribed by William Nicholson, the secretary to the society. The 1780s were exciting years for science and for its applications and experimental philosophy and industrial development were closely interwoven. This coffee house society provided a group of natural philosophers with the opportunity to discuss the topics that most interested them. The minutes themselves, unique in their completeness, constitute a continuous record of the fortnightly meetings of a group of leading natural philosophers, instrument makers, physicians and industrialist entrepreneurs. They are an important resource for historians of politics and society including the industrial revolution as well as for historians of science and technology. In addition to a fully edited edition of the Minute book and brief biographies of all the members, the book includes essays by Jan Golinski on the members' discussion about phlogiston and other issues relating to the chemical revolution and by Larry Stewart on the reforming radical and industrial contexts of the networks to which the members belonged. One of the standard criticisms of English science in the late eighteenth century is its isolation from the rest of Europe. These minutes offer a very different picture. The members, the Irish chemist Richard Kirwan taking the most active role, discussed current issues in science and reported on scientific and industrial advances from all Europe and even from Hudson's Bay, showing early English awareness of the latest developments. The Minute Book gives a sense of history at a particular period and is invaluable to all historians whatever their specialism Everyday Revolutions Diane E. Boyd, Marta Kvannd, 2008 Women's everyday choices can engender revolutionary acts This collection gathers essays that build upon this premise and examines the ways in which eighteenth century women defied not only the restrictions their own culture sought to enforce but also the restrictions our historical and literary understandings have created Markets, Market Culture and Popular Protest in Eighteenth-century Britain and Ireland Adrian Randall, Andrew Charlesworth, 1996-01-01 This volume is concerned with markets market culture and popular protest in eighteenth century Britain and Ireland The chapters focus upon both urban and rural communities towns and cities villages and corporations colliers and tradesmen all feature in these studies since the market was ubiquitous and universal How it was managed however varied from place to place and from time to time and the process of management provides us with a major insight into the social political and economic relationships of eighteenth century Britain Some readers will see in these chapters evidence of the heterogeneity of these relations but others will recognize that for all the apparent differences on basic issues of provisioning there was a remarkable uniformity Following an introductory chapter contributions focus on protest in relation to customary corn measures opposition to turnpikes resistance to the Cider Tax scarcity and market management in Bristol the moral economy of the English middling sort Oxford food riots and the Irish famine 1799 1801
