

Marble sculpture of a seated female figure, likely a Roman copy of a Greek original. The figure is shown from the waist up, seated and facing slightly to the left. Her head is damaged, with the face missing, leaving a large, irregular opening. The hair is carved in long, wavy locks that fall over her shoulders. She is wearing a garment with deep, rhythmic folds that cascade down her front and sides. The marble is light-colored with some darker staining and wear. The sculpture is displayed on a simple, rectangular, light-colored stone base. To the right, another similar sculpture is partially visible, also with a damaged head.
