If a developing country government is not good at providing public services such as health care education and social protection would NGOs be better at doing so What advantages do NGOs have over for profit providers of publicly funded services And considering the importance of donor funding which is better for delivering such services an international NGO or a grassroots NGO Jack presents two descriptive models of nongovernmental organizations and poses normative questions about public policy toward NGOs In situations in which optimal government intervention in a distorted or inequitable economy employs an NGO like body he considers which kinds of NGO might be used First in many developing countries NGOs participate in the delivery of what are essentially private goods in particular health care and education In an economy without NGOs there may be good redistributive and efficiency reasons for the government to provide these goods in kind But if direct government provision of such services is ineffective or inefficient when is contracting out to an NGO like institution preferable to using a traditional for profit firm Another way to frame this is to ask What is the optimal taxation and regulation of private providers of publicly financed services NGOs also provide useful real and financial links with external donors They are used to provide services the government favors and donors are willing to fund In this model the service provider is chosen to yield the best outcome for both government and donor In this context Jack compares an international NGO and a grassroots organization It may be more efficient to transfer donor funds through an international NGO than through a local NGO but when donor government cooperation fails a project implemented by an international NGO is effectively killed If a project implemented by a local organization can limp along this otherwise less efficient organization might be preferred This paper product of Public Service Delivery Development Research Group is part of a larger effort in the group to understand the role of NGOs in delivering basic public services The author may be contacted at wgj@georgetown.edu

Encyclopedia of Violence, Peace, and Conflict Lester R. Kurtz, Jennifer E. Turpin, 1999-08-10 The Encyclopedia of Violence Peace and Conflict a three volume set written by more than 200 eminent contributors from around the world takes advantage of increasing worldwide awareness in the public private commercial and academic sectors about manifestations of violence in all segments of society While the contributors do not use these volumes to make specific arguments they do describe and clarify the developments in thought that have led to current theories about and positions on violence and peace Our reviewers consistently note that while many in depth studies of war peace and aggression exist the attendant specialization keeps scholars from learning about related fields No publication competing with the Encyclopedia of Violence Peace and Conflict can satisfy their need for a vast introductory work to such a diverse and socially important field This major work includes more than 190 multidisciplinary articles with over 1 000 cross references and more than 2 000 bibliography entries for further reading which are arranged alphabetically for easy access More than 190 multidisciplinary articles with over 1 000 cross references Article outline and glossary of key terms begin each article Entries arranged alphabetically for easy access Three volume set with subject index of over 750 entries Articles written by more than 200 eminent contributors from around the world NGOs and Human Rights Claude Emerson Welch,2001 Claude E Welch Jr Economic and Policy Lessons from Japan to Developing Countries T.
