Paulo Davim,2013-05-10 Wood as an engineering material can be technically defined as a hygroscopic orthotropic biological and permeable material having extreme chemical diversity and physical complexity with structures that vary extensively in their shape size properties and function Therefore using wood to its best advantage and most efficiency in engineering applications specific characteristics or chemical physical and mechanical properties must be considered The products are divided into two classes solid wood and composite wood products Solid wood includes shipbuilding bridges flooring mine timbers etc Composite wood products include insulation board plywood oriented strand board hardboard and particle board In recent years the machining of wood products has acquired great importance due the short supply of wood and increasing environmental awareness among users and manufacturers The optimization of the machining process centers around the mechanism of chip formation tool wear workpiece surface quality crack initiation and propagation of different types of wood Other factors are also humidity temperature static preloads and vibrations that can affect the wood during the machining process The book provides some fundamentals and recent research advances on machining wood and wood products      Saws Ed M.
